Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This regulation will implement the Age Discrimination Act of 1975, as amended, in programs or activities assisted by the Department of Justice (DOJ). Faced with ever-increasing adjudications caseloads and with resources which fail to keep pace with those increases, the Service must continually seek ways to carry out its responsibilities in a more efficient manner. By limiting the situations under which a visitor for pleasure may seek an extension of stay, the Service will decrease the amount of resources which must be dedicated to this area and will be able to increase its efforts in other areas having higher priority.

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1103; 31 USC 9701

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 103.7

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The Immigration and Nationalization Service ("the Service") entertains numerous requests for Verification of Information from INS Service Records, via Form G-641. This form has been misused as a substitute document, while other INS documents are being prepared (i.e.: I-94, I-551 or Certificate of Naturalization or Citizenship). Should an applicant need to have his or her status verified while waiting for one of these documents to be processed, and such verification can be satisfied by obtaining a copy of a document (Certified if necessary), an FOIA/PA request can be made. If verification is needed to obtain a benefit and a copy will not suffice, the agency needing verification can make a direct request to the INS and it will be handled as appropriate.

Discontinuing the use of Form G-641 will also eliminate the need to request Form G-350, Certification of Birth Data. Requests for this document are minimal since foreign-born children are issued an alien registration receipt card or a citizenship document by INS and no other form of identification should be necessary.

Abstract: The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 (IRCA) imposes sanctions against employers who hire aliens not authorized to work. Since many of the nation's agricultural employers have become dependent upon such workers to meet production and harvesting needs, Congress created the Special Agricultural Workers

(SAW) Program and the Replenishment Agricultural Workers (RAW) Program to provide permanent resident status to certain agricultural workers. To clarify the process through which employers can employ nonimmigrant seasonal and temporary agricultural workers, Congress moved agricultural employment from H-2 classification into a separate H-2A class, and incorporated a labor certification process into the statute. This interim rule establishes special H-2A regulatory criteria. It supplements the Department of Labor's rules covering the temporary agricultural labor certification process. This rule amends Service regulations relating therefore to temporary alien workers seeking classification under section 101(a)(15) (H) of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

Abstract: The Immigration Marriage Fraud Amendments of 1986 (Pub.L. 99-639) became effective on November 10, 1986. The law provides for conditional permanent resident status for certain alien spouses, sons and daughters of US citizens and lawful permanent residents. It also provides for the removal of the conditional basis of such residence upon the filing of a joint petition by the conditional resident and the petitioning spouse. Additionally, the law provides for the termination of an alien's lawful permanent residence for failure to file the necessary petition or for other reasons. This rulemaking creates interim regulations necessary for the implementation of the law pending preparation of final regulations.

Much of the Service's written policy relating to this subject is now contained in the Service's Operations Instructions at O.I. 214.2(b). Because it is more appropriate for interpretations and rules to be set forth in regulatory form, this information will become part of 8 CFR 214. In addition, the proposed rulemaking will clarify the criteria for according B-1 classification to members of certain occupations (such as participants in religious programs and members of foreign film crews). By issuing this advance notice, the Service is providing an opportunity to the public to submit comments and make suggestions at an earlier stage of the process. Abstract: It has long been the contention of owners of international bridges that sufficient safeguards to fine procedures were lacking in the statutory language of Section 271 (8 U.S.C. 1321) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, as amended. The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, Public Law 99-603 Part B at Section 114 provides amelioration to some degree of this contention. This regulation provides for an inspection by the Attorney General, at the request of owners and operators of facilities which provide a means for the unlawful entry of aliens into the United States. If a determination is made that adequate measures have been taken by the owners to prevent such unlawful entry, the owners will be relieved from liability to fine proceedings as long as the facility remains in the condition in which approved.

Semiannual Agenda of Regulations

AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, Labor.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of regulations selected for review or development.

SUMMARY: This document sets forth the Department's Semiannual Agenda of Regulations which has been selected for review or development during the coming one-year period. The agenda complies with the requirements of both Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act.

DATES: The agenda includes all regulations which are expected to be under review or development between April 1988 and April 1989.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Roland G. Droitsch, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Policy, Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy, Department of Labor, 200 Constitution Avenue, NW., Room S-2312, Washington, DC 20210, (202) 523-9058.

Note: Information pertaining to a specific regulation can be obtained from the Agency Contact listed for that particular regulation.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act require the semiannual publication in the Federal Register of an agenda of regulations.

Executive Order 12291 became effective February 17, 1981, and in substance requires the Department of Labor to publish an agenda, listing all the regulations it expects to have under active consideration for promulgation, proposal or review during the coming one-year period. It also requires the Department to conduct a Regulatory Impact Analysis for all "major" regulations being developed.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act became effective on January 1, 1981. It applies only to regulations for which a notice of proposed rulemaking was issued on or after January 1, 1981, and requires the Department of Labor to publish an agenda, listing all the regulations it expects to propose or promulgate that are likely to have a "significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities" (5 U.S.C. 602). For any regulation that will have this impact, the Department must conduct a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis to gauge the economic consequences of the rule, and to analyze the availability of more flexible approaches for lightening the rule's regulatory burden on "small entities."

If a proposed regulation will not have a "significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities," the Department of Labor must publish a certification to that effect at the time of the general notice of proposed rulemaking or at the time of the publication of the final rule. That certification must be accompanied by a succinct statement explaining the reasons for the agency's determinations.

As permitted by law, the Department of Labor is combining this publication of its agendas under the Regulatory Flexibility Act and Executive Order 12291.

The regulatory reform process, of which the Unified Agenda is a part, continues to be an extremely valuable aid in the development of better regulations by the Department. We believe that our regulatory reform program has resulted in improved regulatory management, more clearly written regulations and significantly less burdensome regulations.

Further improvement is certainly needed, and we are constantly seeking new and innovative approaches in pursuit of this goal. All interested members of the public are invited and encouraged to let Departmental officials know how our regulatory reform process can be further improved and, of course, to participate in and comment on the review or development of the regulations listed on the agenda.

The Department of Labor's next semiannual agenda, under Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, will be published in October 1988.

Ann McLaughlin,
Secretary of Labor.

The proposal also revises the existing DOL Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) regulations, which currently include interpretive material on FOIA exemptions, to limit the scope principally to procedural matters.

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 19, (New)

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: These proposed regulations would authorize Department of Labor units to request financial records from a financial institution pursuant to the formal written request procedure established by the Right to Financial Privacy Act of 1978, 12 U.S.C. 3401 et seq., and would set forth the conditions under which such requests may be made. Section 1108(2) of the Right to Financial Privacy Act of 1978 requires that the formal written request be authorized by regulations promulgated by the head of the agency or department. These proposed regulations would thus, once implemented, enable Department of Labor units to utilize the formal written request procedure to obtain financial records.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 203

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 570

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Section 3(1) of the Fair Labor Standards Act requires the Secretary of Labor to issue regulations with respect to minors between 14 and 16 years of age ensuring that the periods and conditions of their employment do not interfere with their schooling, health, or well-being. The Secretary also is directed to designate occupations that may be particularly hazardous for minors between 16 and 18 years of age. Child Labor Regulation No. 3 sets forth the permissible industries and occupations in which 14 and 15 year olds may be employed. In addition, this regulation specifies the number of hours in a day and in a week, and time periods within a day that such minors may be employed. The nonagricultural hazardous occupations orders which prohibit the employment of minors in such occupations are also contained in 29 CFR 570. Changes in technology and job content over the years require a review of these regulations. In order to increase job opportunities for such minors, while maintaining essential protection for their well-being, modifications to these regulations may be needed. Legal Deadline: Statutory, October 1, 1983.

Rules implementing Section 481 of the 1982
JTPA (29 USC 1781). The operational aspects of such rules need to be coordinated with the pending revisions to the Executive Order 11246 program discussed above.

Abstract: These regulations cover nondiscrimination and affirmative action obligations of Federal contractors under Executive Order
11246, as amended, the Vietnam Era
Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act of 1974 (38 U.S.C. 1212), as amended, and Section 503 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended. Proposed changes were published in the Federal Register on 12/28/79 and 2/22/80. The resulting final rule was published on 12/30/80 but its effective date was stayed pending review in accordance with President Reagan's Executive Order 12291 of 2/17/81. Subsequently,
OFCCP published an ANPRM (7/14/81, supplemented 8/21/81) and a NPRM
8/25/81, supplemented 4/23/82). The NPRM also extended the suspension of the effective date of the 12/30/80 final rule. OFCCP's review of regulatory options continues, and includes consideration of proposed regulations to integrate the requirements of Section
481 of the Job Training Partnership Act of 1982 (29 U.S.C. 1781) with the Executive Order 11246 program.

statutory amendments to definitions applicable to Section 503 of the

1377. DEFINING AND DELIMITING THE TERMS "ANY EMPLOYEE EMPLOYED IN A BONA FIDE EXECUTIVE, ADMINISTRATIVE, OR PROFESSIONAL CAPACITY..." (ESA/W-H)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 213(a)(1)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 541

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: These regulations set forth the criteria used in the determination of the application of the Fair Labor Standards Act exemption for
"executive," "administrative,"
"professional" and "outside sales employees" from the minimum wage and overtime requirements of the Act.
The existing regulation was targeted for review by the President's Task Force on Regulatory Relief. A final rule increasing the salary test criteria was published on 01/13/81 (46 FR 3010) and was scheduled to become effective on 02/13/81. On 02/12/81 (46 FR 11972) an indefinite stay of the final rule was published. On 03/27/81 (46 FR 18998) a proposal to suspend the final rule indefinitely was published with comments due by 04/28/81. As a result of numerous comments and petitions received from industry groups regarding the duties and responsibilities tests as set forth in the regulations, as well as recent case law developments, the Department concluded that a more comprehensive review of these regulations was needed and decided to reopen the comment period and

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 5 USC 8101 et seq.

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 10

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Certain provisions of Final Rules published April 1, 1987, have been challenged as being promulgated in violation of the APA. Those sections deal with collection of forfeited compensation from on-going benefits. In order to ensure that any doubt as to the procedural validity of the rules is laid to rest, the Department has taken two actions: 1) publishing an interim final rule which reinstates the affected sections without the language which has been challenged; and 2) a proposed rule with an invitation to comment, which in effect would reinstate the April 1, 1987 rule but would assure that any defects in the comment period are corrected.

Abstract: These regulations establish the terms and conditions, pursuant to section 14(c) of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA), under which handicapped workers may be employed, under certificate, at wage rates less than those otherwise required by statute. The 1986 Amendments to the FLSA substantially revised section 14(c) to simplify worker certification by eliminating separate certification for more productive workers, multiple handicapped individuals, and those in evaluation or training and work activities centers. Three affected regulations (29 CFR 524, 525 and 529) will be combined into a single proposed new rule which will be published for public comments.

1380. EMPLOYMENT OF HOMEWORKERS IN CERTAIN INDUSTRIES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 211

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 530

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This regulation sets forth restrictions on industrial homework and governs the issuance of certificates authorizing the employment of homeworkers in certain industries, pursuant to Section 11(d) of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA). As originally issued, these regulations restricted the employment of industrial homework in seven industries: knitted outerwear; women's apparel; jewelry; buttons and buckles; gloves and mittens; handkerchiefs; and embroideries. The ban was removed on homework in the knitted outerwear industry by the Department 11/9/81 following extensive hearings and public comment. This action was subsequently upheld by the District Court for the District of Columbia. However, on appeal the ban was reimposed 2/29/84 by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. On 3/27/84 the Department published a proposed rule rescinding the ban on homework in the knitted outerwear industry only. In addition to soliciting comments on the proposed rescission, the Department sought comments on various alternatives to such action (49 FR 11786). On November 5, 1984, a final rule was published lifting the ban on homework for employers (cont)

Based on analysis of the results of its enforcement experience under the new certification procedure, the Department is proposing to rescind the remaining restrictions in the other industries for employers who currently obtain certificates. A Notice of Proposed Rulemaking was published on August 21, 1986 (51 FR 30036). A notice extending the comment period to December 4, 1986 was published on October 21, 1986 (51 FR 37298). Based on the review of the comments and the Department's further examination of enforcement experience in knitted outerwear, a new proposal was developed which includes enforcement mechanisms to enhance compliance among employers of homeworkers.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: Statutory, September 30, 1988.

Abstract: Section 210A(b)(2) of the Immigration Reform and Control Act (IRCA) of 1986, requires reports from any person or entity who employs in seasonal agricultural services, beginning with fiscal year 1989 and ending with fiscal year 1992, a special agricultural worker (SAW) whose status was adjusted to temporary residency under either Section 210 or 210A of IRCA. The employer is required to provide reports on the employment of SAWs and replacement agricultural workers (RAWs) in seasonal agricultural services to the Federal Government and to provide a certificate or report on such employment to individual RAWs, but not SAWs. Thus, the procedures for implementing the SAW reporting system must be in place by the beginning of fiscal year 1989, with the first reports required in fiscal year 1989 and the first reports to RAW workers, if any are admitted, required in fiscal year 1990. The person or entity reporting could be a farm operator, a farm labor contractor, an agricultural services firm or an operator of horticultural and juvenile tree nurseries. Seasonal agricultural services are defined by USDA regulations (cont)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1; 29 CFR 5

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: These regulations govern labor standards applicable to federally funded or assisted construction contracts subject to the Davis-Bacon and Related Acts (as well as contracts subject to the Contract Work Hours and Safety Standards Act). The Department plans to implement provisions in these regulations that would permit contractors to expand their use of semi-skilled "helpers" on Davis-Bacon covered projects at wages lower than those paid to skilled journeymen.

Revised final rules were originally published 05/28/82 (47 FR 23658), but were deferred on 07/26/82 (47 FR 32070) due to an injunction issued by the U.S. District Court. Although the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit has since upheld most of the key provisions published in 1982, the district court injunction remains in effect against certain provisions dealing with helpers. The Department intends to implement the helper provisions in accordance with the decisions of the District and Appeals Courts. A revised proposal was published 08/19/87 (52 FR 31366), and the comment period was later extended to 11/18/87 (52 FR 38473).

Abstract: The National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities Act of 1965, as amended in 1976, requires the Secretary to determine the prevailing minimum compensation for professional performers and related or supporting professional personnel employed on projects or productions assisted by grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and the National Endowment for the Humanities. As originally enacted, these labor standards only applied to the Arts; the existing regulations do not reflect the amendments which applied the same labor standards to the Humanities. The Arts, Humanities, and Museums Amendments of 1985, which were enacted on December 20, 1985, require the Secretary of Labor to issue regulations to assure that prevailing minimum compensation is provided to all professional performers and related or supporting professional personnel employed on projects or productions financed in whole or in part by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Abstract: In September 1986, the Department of Labor announced in the Federal Register its review of the public employment service, raising the concern of the employment service capability to meet the current and future labor market needs, particularly the labor market needs that will emerge in the year 2000. The announcement provided the public an opportunity to respond either orally at public meetings held in

An analysis of the public response to the announcement, as well as other data available to the Department from other research, studies, and papers provides the basis for the Department to propose a refocus of the employment service to address current and emerging labor force trends. The Act requires the Secretary of Labor to specify the percentage of prior salary which an "eligible protected employee" would receive as a benefit payment under the Act. An eligible protected employee is a person who has had at least 4 years of employment with a certificated air carrier as of October 24, 1978 and who loses his or her job during the ten years following such date in a bankruptcy or major employment contraction if and only if the Department of Transportation determines that the principal causes of such job loss was deregulation. On May 17, 1984 the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia held that Section 43 of the Airline Deregulation Act was unconstitutional. States indicates that a number of changes should be made to these regulations. The proposed amendments would be intended to make labor certification process more efficient, to prevent abuse or manipulation of the labor certification process, to clarify some apparent ambiguities in the regulations, and to make the regulations easier to read. Before the Department of State (DOS) and the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) may issue visas and admit certain immigrant aliens to work permanently in the United States, the Secretary of Labor pursuant to section 212(a)(14) of the Immigration and Naturalization Act (INA) must certify to the Secretary of State and to the Attorney General that: (a) There are not sufficient United States workers who are able, willing, qualified and available at the time of the application for a visa and admission into the United States and at the place where the alien is to perform work; and (cont)

The Department of Labor (DOL) has promulgated regulations at 20 CFR Part 656 pursuant to and to implement section 212(a)(14) of the INA (8 USC 1182(a)(14). ### 1398. ● IMPLEMENTATION OF THE WORKER ADJUSTMENT LEGISLATION

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 1501

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 631

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: In early 1987, the President proposed legislation for a new Worker Readjustment Program to respond to dislocations caused by plant closings, mass layoffs, international competition and technological change. The Congress, in conference, is considering worker readjustment legislation as a replacement for the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) Title III program for dislocated workers. The Department anticipates enactment in 1988. The new program will incorporate several important new changes. Among these changes are: (1) institutionalizing a State rapid response capability, (2) changing delivery system to mandate the designation of substate grantees, (3) focusing on better resource utilization through reallocation and reallocation provisions, (4) greater emphasis on training in innovative features such as certificates of continuing eligibility and individual vouchers for training. In addition, greater emphasis will be placed upon coordination and linkages among major training and employment program components such as the public employment service, the UI and TAA programs.

1399. ● JOB TRAINING PARTNERSHIP ACT - AMENDMENT CONCERNING FIXED UNIT PRICE PERFORMANCE BASED CONTRACTS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: Not Yet Determined

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 629, (Revision)

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: On October 13, the President signed into law the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) Amendments of 1986. In an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking of January 16, 1987, the Department indicated that, in addition to proposed rules for the JTPA Amendments of 1986, it would review fixed-unit-price performance-based contracting to determine the need for regulatory revision. The Department has completed this review with the resulting determination of the need for regulatory revision in this area. Proposed regulatory revisions will be published as a final rule around the latter part of 1988. The revisions will deal with the following critical areas: (1) the definition of the term "training" for the purposes of 20 CFR 629.38(a)(2) the allocation of charges among the several cost categories of the final elements of performance--"placement in unsubsidized employment in the occupation trained for, and at the specific wage"--do not occur; (3) clarification regarding the generation of profits and the use of such profits by contractors and/or (4) the practice of making incremental payments to contractors for achieving interim performance benchmarks rather than full performance.

such appeal rights exist and if a State seeks review of one of the above actions the only appeal forum is the Federal Court. Provision of these appeal rights before the Office of Administrative Law Judges should reduce the workload of the Federal Court system and allow the Department of Labor adjudicate the issues in a more informal setting with the Administrative Law Judges, who are more accustomed to dealing with the particular issues involved. The regulation will also correct what is perceived as an inequity, since most Employment and Training Administration programs have administrative appeal rights.

Significance: Regulatory Program

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 654.5(b)

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Currently the Department of Labor only classifies civil jurisdictions (counties, cities over 50,000 population as well as townships and towns in certain selected States) as labor surplus areas. This policy has resulted in some employment centers in the nation's large metropolitan areas not being classified as labor surplus areas, even though the entire Metropolitan Statistical Areas or Primary Metropolitan Statistical Areas would meet the labor surplus area criteria if such geographic areas were classified. The proposed rule would grant the Assistant Secretary for Employment and Training the authority to classify Metropolitan Statistical Areas and Primary Metropolitan Statistical Areas as labor surplus areas to help alleviate unemployment in these areas. The change will add some additional labor surplus areas to the current list but it will not increase the funds going to such designated areas.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 100 to 203 Section 9342(c)

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: Statutory, January 1, 1989. Section 9342(d) of OBRA 1987 specifically directs the Secretary to issue not later than January 1, 1989, the regulations required to implement this provision.

Abstract: Section 502(c) of the Employee Retirement Income Security

Act of 1974 (ERISA) was amended by Section 9342(c) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987 (OBRA 1987) to authorize the Secretary of Labor to assess a civil penalty of up to $1,000 a day from the date of a plan administrator's failure or refusal to file the complete annual report required to be filed with the Secretary under section 101(b)(4) of ERISA. This regulation would carry out the requirement of OBRA 1987 that the Secretary promulgate regulations implementing the new civil penalty provision relating to a plan administrator's failure or refusal to file a complete annual report.

Abstract: In response to concerns raised by members of Congress and the mining community about the nature and accuracy of existing reporting obligations, MSHA established an intra-agency task force to review its requirements for reports of accidents, injuries and illnesses in coal and metal and nonmetal mines. The Agency focused on several aspects of the reporting requirements including the definition of an occupational injury or illness, and an expanded audit program. The Agency has determined that the existing regulations in Part 50 should be clarified and improved through the rulemaking process. #### 1439. AUTOMATIC WARNING DEVICES FOR MOBILE EQUIPMENT

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 77.410

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: MSHA's existing standard requires mobile equipment to be equipped with devices which automatically sound an alarm when the equipment is put in reverse. MSHA is considering revising the standard to exclude pickup trucks if the driver has an unobstructed rear view. The Agency

1440. AUTOMATIC BRAKES ON SELF-PROPELLED ELECTRIC FACE EQUIPMENT

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 75.523-3

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: In 1973, the Agency issued installation and performance requirements for automatic emergency brakes on rubber-tired, self-propelled electric face equipment for underground coal mines. However, there was not sufficient technical data to develop criteria for evaluating the designs of these braking systems. On July 30, 1974, the effective dates for compliance with 75.523-3 were suspended indefinitely. MSHA now has sufficient technical data to review the standard.

1441. ELECTRIC MINE LAMPS OTHER THAN STANDARD CAP LAMPS

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 20

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Under existing standards MSHA is limited to investigating and approving lamps which meet the design, construction and test requirements specifically set forth in 30 CFR 20. As a result, the Agency is restricted from approving lamps that incorporate alternative technology. The proposal would amend Part 20 to enable the Agency to issue approvals for lamps which, after testing, are found to be safe for their intended use and provide, at a minimum, the same degree of protection as lamps currently approved under the existing standards.

1442. COAL AIR QUALITY

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 70

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Permissible exposure limits for most noxious and poisonous gases in underground coal mines are addressed in 30 CFR 75.301-2. This ventilation standard incorporates by reference an outdated national consensus standard. MSHA would replace the incorporation by reference with updated standards that are more specific to the mining industry. These standards would be recodified with other health standards for underground coal mining in 30 CFR 70.

1443. MULTIPLE-SHOT BLASTING UNITS

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The requirements for approval of blasting units are part of the overall coal review to update standards. The revision of existing Part 25 specifications is to be proposed as Subpart D to Part 7. Under this concept, testing would be done by the applicant or a third party, subject to Agency requirements and approval.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 44

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: On July 10, 1987, the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia invalidated the Agency's existing interim relief regulation based in part, on procedural defects, holding that it was contrary to Congressional interest. (INT. UNION v. MSHA, 823 F. 2d 608 (D.C. Cir. 1987). Therefore, MSHA has issued a proposal addressing interim relief in situations where enforcement of a mandatory standard would result in a diminution of safety to affected miners or in emergency situations.

1445. PROCEDURES FOR APPROVAL OF MINING EQUIPMENT

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 7

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This would be a new Part. Under existing regulations, certain equipment must be tested and approved by MSHA prior to use in certain underground mines. The proposal would permit manufacturers or independent laboratories to test certain equipment prior to issuance of the Agency's approval. The actual authority for approval would continue to remain with the government. The final rule contains a mechanism for monitoring quality assurance and conducting post-approval audits.

1446. UNDERGROUND COAL MINE VENTILATION

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 75.300

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The Agency published a proposed rule concerning ventilation in underground mines which included provisions for the introduction of new technology for systematic monitoring of explosive methane gas, as well as gases that may indicate a mine fire. Other important issues include ventilation of worked-out areas; timeframes for tests for methane; and using intake air that has been used to ventilate a belt conveyor entry. The existing escapeway standards contained in 30 CFR Part 75.1704 (previously RIN: 1219-AA37) are incorporated into the proposal.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 957

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 11

Abstract: Under the 1977 Mine Act, MSHA and the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health

(NIOSH) jointly approve respirators for use in hazardous atmospheres. New technology has been developed which has not been accommodated by the existing regulations. In addition, questions have been raised about laboratory testing and field performance of respirators. The decision has been made for NIOSH to have the lead in approval of respirators. MSHA will be involved with the devices which are uniquely adapted or required for mining. A proposed rule to remove MSHA's regulations upon completion of a concurrent NIOSH rulemaking was published in August 1987. However, further rulemaking is contingent upon NIOSH's timetables.

Abstract: On June 17, 1986, OSHA issued revised standards governing occupational exposure to asbestos, tremolite, anthophyllite, and actinolite in general industry and in the construction industry. These standards replaced OSHA's previous asbestos standard promulgated in 1972. Since the issuance of the revised standards OSHA has received letters and petitions, from both rulemaking participants and nonparticipants, that contain additional comments, assertions and information that the rulemaking record may not fully reflect. These letters and petitions concern the appropriateness of regulating nonasbestiform tremolite, anthophyllite and actinolite as presenting the same health risk as asbestos. OSHA has granted a temporary stay of the effective dates of the current standards as they apply to nonasbestiform varieties of tremolite, anthophyllite and actinolite. This action was taken, in part, to enable the Agency to review letters and memoranda from the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health as well as submissions by the R.T. Vanderbilt Company and various other (Cont'd)

The Carcinogen Policy explicitly recognizes that periodic revisions are necessary in order to incorporate the latest scientific advances and techniques into the regulatory process. Hence, given the very rapid advances since 1980 in the understanding of the mechanisms of carcinogenesis, it is time for OSHA to review and modernize the Carcinogen Policy. The original standard was issued in 1980 before the Supreme Court "benzene" decision on significant risk. Thereafter, a final rule deleting

Abstract: OSHA's policy concerning the use of engineering controls and respirators was targeted for review by the President's Task Force on Regulatory Relief in 1981. Current OSHA regulations require that employers implement feasible engineering controls to maintain air contaminant concentrations in the workplace at or below the prescribed permissible exposure limits. The use of respirators is permitted only in those cases where engineering controls are not feasible, not yet installed, or not adequate. This policy has been criticized as being inflexible, not cost-effective, and often unnecessary for employee health protection. OSHA believes that any changes to the policy for use of engineering controls must be closely coordinated with revisions in the respiratory protection regulations (29 CFR 1910.134). This rulemaking does not address the assessment and reduction of any absolute existing risks, but rather addresses the possible change in risk abatement associated with the use of respirators instead of engineering controls.

Abstract: OSHA has amended its standard for occupational exposure to benzene by reducing the permissible exposure limit from 10 parts benzene per million parts of air (10 ppm) to an eight-hour time-weighted average of 1 ppm and by adding appropriate industrial hygiene and medical surveillance provisions necessary for the protection of employee health. This action is based on OSHA's determination that the amendments are needed to reduce the risk of leukemia and other adverse health effects associated with occupational exposure to benzene.

OSHA published its final amendment to the standard on September 11, 1987. Due to technical problems associated with the completion of a detailed study of feasibility in barge and tanker cleaning and repair operations, however, OSHA exempted these operations from certain provisions of the standard. OSHA intends to issue a proposal to amend the benzene standard which will address the factors specific to the barge and tanker cleaning and repair industry.

Abstract: Logging is a very hazardous industry. It has an incidence rate nearly twice that of manufacturing, and reflecting the seriousness of the injuries incurred, a lost workday rate nearly four times as high. The purpose of the standard will be to protect workers from the ever-present hazards of chain saw operation, falling objects (trees, branches), rolling or sliding logs, falls from trees, and materials handling accidents. At present there is no OSHA standard specifically applicable to logging in general. There is a standard, 29 CFR 1910.266, applicable only to pulpwood logging; however, pulpwood logging is estimated to account for less than half of the logging activity in the United States. Development of a national OSHA standard addressing all types of logging will provide coverage for those loggers not now protected. The new regulation will provide coverage where there is no approved state regulation and will set a minimum safety level for those states that chose to develop a state regulation.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.147, (New)

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The proposed standard will fill a major gap in our current regulations which now depend for enforcement on the general duty clause, 5(a)(1). It will apply to those situations where the unexpected energization, start up or the release of stored energy could cause injury to employees. Providing comprehensive and uniform control procedures is also expected to reduce significantly the potential for injury and death of employees because the hazards targeted for control exist in virtually every workplace. Further, the proposed standard will respond to the concerns of organized labor who petitioned OSHA in 1979 and again in 1982 for regulatory action to protect employees and to the American National Standards Institute's petition for OSHA to adopt its consensus standard ANSI Z244.1-1982. Regulatory options involve developing a comprehensive standard covering all potentially hazardous energy sources or limiting the scope and application to those certain machines or industries that are causing most of the injuries.

The current language in many instances addresses the hazards to cargo handling involving methods long since abandoned, and fails to address the serious hazards of newer methods. Because much of the current standard is out of date, there are problems with compliance. These revised requirements will provide both employers and employees with a blueprint for effective and safe workpractices in the cargo handling industry. No alternative other than revision is contemplated. The annual cost of the revision is expected to be minimal -- less than five million dollars.

Recent scientific data indicate that MDA is a carcinogen in animals and a potential carcinogen in humans. In 1983, OSHA and the Environmental Protection Agency participated in a joint effort to publish an advance notice of proposed rulemaking to solicit information on MDA production and use, estimates of environmental and occupational exposure, and studies of its toxic and carcinogenic effects. EPA evaluated the data received in response to the advance notice and concluded that the chemical presents an unreasonable risk of injury to the health of exposed workers. Under the provisions of section 9(a) of the Toxic Substances Control Act, EPA referred MDA to OSHA for action. OSHA responded to the EPA referral on 2/26/86. OSHA established a mediated rulemaking advisory committee composed of interested parties from labor, industry and government to assist the agency in developing a proposed standard. The Committee completed its work in June 1987 (Cont'd)

1479. ELECTRIC POWER GENERATION, TRANSMISSION AND DISTRIBUTION (PART 1910)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.269

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: A major area of coverage not addressed in the current OSHA electrical standards for general industry (29 CFR 1910) involves the maintenance and operation practices associated with electrical transmission and distribution lines, substations and generating stations. It is intended that the proposed standard fill this void by establishing minimum requirements for electrical safety work practices for qualified employees working on or near installations whose purpose is the generation and distribution of electricity.

Abstract: In its May 7, 1987, Federal Register notice the Agency requested information to assist in the possible revision of 29 CFR Part 1919. Part 1919, entitled "Gear Certification," implements requirements located in each of OSHA's maritime standards which cover work carried out within the Federal maritime jurisdiction. Changes in the design and composition of cargo handling gear which have evolved since these rules were last amended (1969) provided questions as to the efficacy of the current rules. Abstract: In July 1985, OSHA was petitioned by the United Automobile, Aerospace and Agricultural Implement Workers of America (UAW) to issue a hazard alert; issue an emergency temporary standard; and to begin work on a new permanent standard for methylene chloride (DCM). This request was based on information obtained from the Environmental Protection Agency and the National Toxicology Program indicating that DCM is an animal carcinogen and may have the potential to cause cancer in humans. In November 1986, OSHA notified the UAW that its petition had been granted, in part, and denied, in part. Specifically, OSHA has issued a set of guidelines for controlling occupational exposure to DCM and has decided to proceed with rulemaking to develop a new permanent standard. OSHA denied that portion of the petition requesting the issuance of an emergency temporary standard.

Abstract: OSHA promulgated a final rule on August 24, 1987, that extended the protections of its Hazard Communication Standard (HCS) from the manufacturing sector to all other workplaces where employees are exposed to hazardous chemicals. The HCS requires covered employers to establish hazard communication programs for their employees, including labels on containers, material safety data sheets, and training programs. As the final rule was published pursuant to a court order without having published a NPRM, OSHA invited additional comment on the final rule for 60 days. The Agency is now proposing some modifications to the final rule to address issues of concern.

1498. BLOODBORNE INFECTIOUS DISEASES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655 et seq

CFR Citation: 29 CFR Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Many health-care workers are exposed to blood and body fluids from patients who have active bloodborne infections or are carriers of these infections. Such exposure presents a potential risk of disease for the health-care workers. One such disease, hepatitis B, has been shown to present a substantially increased risk for health-care workers. Data received by OSHA indicate that of the approximately 250,000 cases of hepatitis B diagnosed in the U.S. each year, approximately 5.5 percent, or 15,000 cases, are among health-care workers. It has been estimated that 222-265 health-care workers die each year as a result of hepatitis B and associated and the Public Citizen Health Research Group petitioned OSHA to issue an emergency temporary standard reducing the permissible exposure limit for cadmium to one microgram of cadmium per cubic meter of air. On June 25, 1987 the union and HR 6 filed a petition with the Court of Appeals requesting the Court to order OSHA to promulgate an ETS. In its July 1, 1987, response to the petitioners, OSHA stated that issuance of an emergency standard was not warranted, but that exposure to cadmium at levels permitted under the current standard represented a significant risk to worker health which would be addressed through section 6(b) rulemaking procedures. OSHA is in the process of developing a proposed standard.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655 et seq

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1000, Tables Z-1 to Z-3

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: In 1972, OSHA promulgated permissible exposure limits (PELs) for a number of toxic substances, pursuant to authority granted by section 6(a) of the Act, which allowed OSHA (for a limited period) to adopt existing Federal standards or industry consensus standards as enforceable OSHA standards. Accordingly, the lists of toxic substances now codified at 29 CFR 1910.1000, Tables Z-1 and Z-3, were Federal standards adopted under the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act, which, in turn, were adopted from the American Conference of Governmental Industrial Hygienists (ACGIH)

Threshold Limit Values (TLVs) for 1968. The substances listed at 29 CFR 1910.1000, Table Z-2, were adopted from American National Standards Institute standards. Industrial experience, new developments in control technology, and scientific data acquired since 1968 have led the ACGIH to make changes in its TLVs over the years. Many of the TLVs have been lowered, and limits for additional chemicals have been established. During this period, OSHA has promulgated revised standards for toxic substances on a substance-by-substance basis. This process, however, has not kept up with (Cont'd)

1501. HAZARDOUS MATERIALS (PART 1910)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910, Subpart H

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Standards in 29 CFR Part 1910, Subpart H, which address the storage, handling and use of hazardous materials, such as compressed gases, acetylene, hydrogen, oxygen, liquified petroleum gases, and flammable and combustible liquids, will be revised. This regulatory action will provide a new approach to the revision of Subpart H and will occur in three phases in an expanded timeframe. The three phases will be (1) Process Hazards Management, (2) Flammable and Compressed Gases, and, (3)

Hazardous Liquids. The first phase of the proposed action is intended to better protect employees from unexpected releases of significant quantities of dangerous substances. The remaining phases are intended to simplify, clarify and consolidate standards on hazardous materials and assist employers and employees in general industry to better understand and better focus on the hazards inherent in the use, handling, and storage of such materials.

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This regulatory action will complete the consolidation and updating of Parts 1915 and 1910 by providing shipyard employees with coverage under one comprehensive OSHA standard. This revision will involve the promulgation of 16 maritime subparts and their 1910 counterparts. Its completion will relieve shipyard owners from the burden of having to comply with two sets of rules that are complex,

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1450

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Existing OSHA standards are designed to protect employees who are engaged in work involving exposure to only a few toxic chemicals during relatively standardized, continuous or repetitive processes. In contrast, laboratory workers are exposed to a multitude of toxic substances under frequently changing or unpredictable conditions. During this rulemaking, OSHA will examine whether prudent work practices and protective equipment, chosen for the specific facility and task, are more effective, feasible and economical for laboratory work than adhering to OSHA's current substance-specific standards. Accordingly, OSHA has proposed a special performance-oriented work practices standard that, if promulgated, would apply to laboratory workers and would contain provisions specifically designed for laboratory conditions.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Abstract: Recent scientific studies have reported that ethylene dibromide causes cancer when administered orally, by inhalation and by skin application in laboratory animals. In addition, other studies have shown the chemical to be a mutagen, teratogen and testicular toxin in experimental animals. On the basis of these reports, OSHA has determined that its current permissible exposure limit of 20 ppm does not provide exposed workers adequate protection against cancer and other adverse health effects. A proposed standard for ethylene dibromide was published 10/07/83 (43 FR 45956). Public hearings were held in February 1984. OSHA is currently in the process of decisionmaking on the provisions to be included in the final standard.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b); 29 USC 657

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.20

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The existing record access rule was promulgated in May 1980. The rule requires employers to preserve and maintain exposure and medical records pertinent to employee exposure to toxic substances, and to ensure access to these records by employees, designated employee representatives and OSHA. As a result of numerous requests and suggestions for changes to the standard, OSHA published a proposal to revise the standard in 1982. OSHA intends to publish soon a final rule that resolves many of the issues raised in the 1982 proposal. This regulation will be similar to the regulation promulgated in 1980 with certain exceptions relating to: (1) first-aid records and medical records of short-term employees; (2) the microfilm storage of employee X-rays; (3) employer trade secrets; (4) employee exposure record requirements for other records; and (5) unconsented access to employee exposure records by union representatives.

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1926.700; 29 CFR 1926.701; 29 CFR 1926.702

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: One of the greatest hazards associated with concrete and masonry structures in the construction industry is the collapse or failure of the entire structure or its forms and shoring. The catastrophic failures of recent years indicate that revision of the existing standard applicable to such construction operations is necessary. The current concrete standard contains outdated referenced standards, gaps in coverage, redundant provisions, and provisions which need clarification. The referenced standards are being updated and placed in the body of the standard. New standards are being added to cover precast concrete erection and masonry wall construction. The provisions that were identified as being redundant are being removed and the ambiguous provisions are being clarified. In addition, the record will be reopened to allow information and evidence obtained from the investigation of a recent major accident to be included in the record pertaining to lift-slab operations. Revised lift-slab rules will then be proposed.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Abstract: The present standard, which requires positive engagement of a powered platform with a building face to provide stabilization, may need to be revised because many variance designs have been submitted which do not provide positive engagement of the platform, yet claim equal stability. The agency believes there may be merit to this claim. The proposal provides flexibility in compliance through performance-oriented provisions as alternatives to positive engagement. It would also expand the scope of the current standard to include requirements covering additional suspension equipment, fall protection, and employee training.

Legal Deadline: Statutory, October 16, 1987.

Abstract: Public Law 99-499 requires the Secretary of Labor to promulgate a final standard for Hazardous Operations and Emergency Response by October 17, 1987. The law requires the proposed rule to address eleven areas: site analysis, training, medical surveillance, protective equipment, engineering controls, maximum exposure limits, informational programs, handling and labeling, new technology programs, decontamination procedures, and emergency response. The agency has developed a Preliminary Regulatory Impact Analysis which is available in the docket. The analysis estimates that the benefits are significant and that annualized costs are $71 million for training, $17 million for medical surveillance, $12 million for decontamination, $11 million for protection suits and $37 million for other requirements. OSHA held public hearings in Washington, D.C. and Seattle, Washington to enhance public comment and participation in this rulemaking. On December 22, 1987 Congress amended SARA to require the Secretary of Labor to develop a training certification program at least as comprehensive as the EPA's Model Program for (CONT'D)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655 et seq

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1025

Legal Deadline: Judicial, October 1, 1987.

Abstract: On December 11, 1981 (46 FR 60758), OSHA published a Revised Statement of Reasons concerning the feasibility of compliance with paragraph (e)(1) of the standard for occupational exposure to lead, which had been promulgated in 1978. In this revised statement, OSHA stated that it could not reach a conclusion regarding feasibility, on the basis of the existing rulemaking record, for eight specific industry sectors: lead chromate pigments, lead chemicals, nonferrous foundries, brass and bronze ingot production, secondary copper smelting, leaded steel, shipbuilding and ship repair, stevedoring, and battery breaking separate from secondary smelting, and that in addition, it wished to reexamine the applicability of the lead standard to the stevedoring industry. OSHA requested that the record (which was under review by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit) be remanded for supplementary administrative proceedings. The Court granted OSHA's December 1981 request on March 31, 1987, and remanded the record to OSHA for further administrative proceedings to determine the feasibility of section (e)(1) for the nine industry sectors OSHA had (Cont'd)

On June 17, 1987, OSHA filed with the Court a motion requesting a 90-day extension to January 1, 1988. On July 31, 1987 the Court granted OSHA's motion. OSHA published in the Federal Register on August 3, 1987, a notice of a limited reopening of the rulemaking record (limited to the issue of feasibility) and specified September 2, 1987 for the receipt of comments from the public and September 15, 1987 for public hearings. Thereafter, at the request of industry and labor, OSHA deferred the relevant dates for the rulemaking until September 16 and 29, 1987, respectively. OSHA requested, and was granted by the Court, an extension for final action until July 15, 1988.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1001; 29 CFR 1926.58

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: In June 1986, OSHA promulgated revised standards governing exposure to asbestos in general industry and construction. OSHA reduced the 8-hour Time Weighted Average (TWA) Permissible Exposure Limit (PEL) to 0.2 f/cc, but did not issue a short term exposure limit (STEL). OSHA's principal reason for not issuing an excursion limit was that the rulemaking record failed to show a dose-rate effect. Subsequently, in July 1986, the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, in reviewing the EtO standard, held that OSHA may not base its determination to not issue a STEL on the lack of a "dose-rate effect" and that the "OSH Act compels the Agency to adopt a STEL if the record shows that it would further reduce a significant health risk and is feasible to implement." To conform to this judicial decision OSHA plans to amend the Asbestos standards by the issuance of an appropriate excursion limit for all workplaces affected by the revised Asbestos standards.

Legal Deadline: Judicial, March 1988. In a July 21, 1987, decision the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit ordered OSHA to adhere to the schedule set out in its response to petitioners' contempt motion and issue its final decision on the EtO STEL issue no later than March 1988.

Abstract: On July 25, 1986, in Public Citizen HRG v. Tyson, Docket No. 84-1252, the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia upheld most of the final standard on EtO, including the 1 ppm TWA. However, the Court remanded the standard to the Agency for further proceedings on whether a short term exposure limit is necessary to further reduce the significant risk that exists with a 1 ppm TWA alone. In accordance with the Court's order, OSHA intends to reopen the EtO rulemaking record to review the issue of the STEL. This will be accomplished by publication of a notice of proposed rulemaking.

The agency failed to meet its March 30, 1985 deadline established pursuant to settlement agreement with MET Electrical Testing Company, Inc. The suit is currently pending.

Abstract: This rulemaking would establish mandatory procedures for recognizing those organizations competent to fulfill testing requirements contained in many OSHA safety standards. It would also amend a number of existing OSHA standards by deleting references to two product testing groups, UL and FM, that are included in these standards which were originally adopted as national consensus standards under Section 6(a) of the Act. In humans, formaldehyde causes reversible sensory irritation of the eyes, nose, and throat, asthma and dermal irritation sensitization. Chronic studies in animals suggest that formaldehyde may also pose a carcinogenic risk in humans. This information indicates that the present OSHA standard for formaldehyde may need revision. On December 10, 1985, OSHA published a proposed standard. Public hearings were held in May 1985. OSHA is currently in the process of decisionmaking on the provisions to be included in the final standard.

The first annual review of the labor practices of U.S. firms was published in September, 1987. The Department of State has reviewed the regulations since the report was completed and has revised the questionnaire; it is updating the regulations. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 22 USC 4301 et seq; 22 USC 254a

CFR Citation: 22 CFR 151

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The Foreign Missions Act Amendments of 1983 amended the Diplomatic Relations Act of 1978 and the Foreign Missions Act to enforce more effectively a requirement that persons connected with foreign missions carry liability insurance against risks arising from the operation in the U.S. of automobiles, vessels or aircraft by persons entitled to diplomatic or consular immunity. The Department issues and enforces pertinent regulations with the aim of ensuring that the objectives of this program are achieved. The regulations are designed to carry out the obligations of the U.S. to foreign diplomatic and consular missions, to induce concessions for U.S. diplomatic and consular missions abroad, to protect the U.S. public against uninsured foreign drivers, and to combat international terrorism. The expected potential benefits to society will greatly outweigh potential costs. We continue our analysis and discussions to ensure that regulatory mechanisms chosen maximize net benefits and minimize net costs. We seek to set priorities for our regulatory goals and objectives to maximize aggregate net benefits to society. In that connection, the liability insurance regulations have first priority.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 22 USC 4301 et seq; 22 USC 254(e)

Abstract: The Foreign Missions Act creates certain authorities for the Secretary of State relating to the regulation of foreign missions, diplomatic, consular, and international organizations. Exercise of those authorities could involve restricting or controlling the access of such missions to American vendors of goods and services. Exercise of other authorities in the Foreign Missions Act could affect the location of premises of foreign missions. Exercise of authority in the Diplomatic Relations Act, 22 USC 254(a) et seq., as amended by Title VI of P.L. 98-164, will have an impact on the acquisition of liability insurance coverage for the operation of motor vehicles, vessels, and aircraft by personnel of foreign missions, and could in certain situations, subject foreign missions to surcharges or fees. The regulations under consideration would provide procedures for exercise of these authorities. These regulations are at the stage of preliminary consideration. No timetable has been established other than that established in Title VI of P.L. 98-164.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: None, until ratification of treaty.

Abstract: The 1980 Hague Convention provides for the prompt return of children habitually resident in one contracting State who have been wrongfully abducted to another, including wrongful retention by a non-custodial parent. When the United States ratifies the Convention and Congress enacts the federal legislation, the Bureau of Consular Affairs will be tasked by executive order to serve as U.S. Central Authority (CA) under the Convention. Thus it will receive applications for the return of children wrongfully abducted to or retained in the United States. In conjunction with cooperating authorities in the U.S. State where the child is believed to be located, the CA's task will include seeking to locate the child, facilitating the initiation of a court action to require the child's return, arranging for the provision of information about the child's circumstances in the country of its habitual residence, and arranging for the child's return transportation if return is ordered. Legal Authority: 22 USC 2658

CFR Citation: 22 CFR 136, (new)

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The Department of State will participate in the promulgation of a common regulation that establishes uniform administrative requirements for grants and cooperative agreements to universities, hospitals, and other nonprofit organizations. This effort will revise the current Office of Management and Budget (OMB) Circular A-110 (same title) for the purpose of restoring commonality between A-110 and OMB Circular A-102, "Uniform Administrative Requirements for Grants to State and Local Governments." Under the revised Circular A-102, and as directed by President Reagan on March 12, 1987, all affected agencies have proposed simultaneously common regulations that adopt government-wide terms and conditions. This procedure will be used to implement the revised Circular A-110. No other alternatives are being considered. The rule will be intended to promote consistency and uniformity among the participating agencies.

1533. DEPARTMENT OF STATE ACQUISITION REGULATION (DOSAR)

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 22 USC 2658; 40 USC 486(c)

CFR Citation: 48 CFR 601 to 653, (New)

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The Department of State is publishing the Department of State Acquisition Regulation (DOSAR) as part of the Federal Acquisition Regulations System, which consists of the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) and agency acquisition regulations that implement or supplement the FAR. This action is necessary to provide regulatory guidelines not otherwise found in the FAR for Department of State acquisitions. There are no other alternatives for addressing the problem;

the DOSAR must be established in accordance with FAR Subpart 1.3. By this action, the Department of State will establish a single regulation for its acquisition policies, procedures, contract clauses, solicitation procedures, and forms that govern its relationship with its contractors and prospective contractors.

abuse in non-procurement activities using Federal assistance. Guidelines for the system were developed by a Task Force on Non - Procurement Suspension and Debarment. The task force was convened by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), pursuant to its responsibilities established by President Reagan under Executive Order 12549, Debarment and Suspension (February 18, 1986). As a Federal agency, the Department of State must either adopt this common rule or promulgate a separate system that meets the requirements of Executive Order 12549.

Legal Deadline: Statutory, October 1, 1988. Statutory deadline applies only to one proposed revision; the remainder of the proposals are not subject to a legal deadline.

Abstract: The ITAR were first published in their current form in 1955 and have been periodically amended to reflect statutory enactments and to implement foreign policy. The last substantial revision occurred in December 1984; minor amendments have been effected since that date. The proposed revisions principally clarify and implement existing authorities and controls. For example, they make express the intent of the regulations to exempt general FOIA releases from licensing requirements; to license specified aspects of sales of registrants to foreign corporations; to govern the movement of military vessels outside the U.S.; to specify required clauses in procurement agreements; and to prescribe broader compliance and debarment authority. The amendments would also replace a licensing requirement for temporary imports with a notification requirements, thus easing regulatory controls on such transactions, expediting the process, and, overall, providing ample benefits and reducing costs.

Agenda

Background

Improvement of government regulations is a prime goal of the Reagan Administration. There should be no more regulations than necessary, and those that are issued should be simpler, more comprehensible, and less burdensome. Regulations should not be issued without appropriate involvement of the public; once issued, they should be periodically reviewed and revised, as needed, to assure that they continue to meet the needs for which they originally were designed.

To help the Department of Transportation ("Department") achieve these goals, and in accordance with Executive Order 12291 ("Federal Regulation"; 46 FR 13193; February 19, 1981) and the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures (44 FR 11034; February 26, 1979), the Department prepares a semiannual Regulations Agenda for publication in the Federal Register. The agenda summarizes all current and projected rulemaking, reviews of existing regulations and completed actions of the Department. These are matters on which action has begun or is projected during the succeeding twelve months or such longer period as may be anticipated or for which action has been completed since the last agenda.

The agendas are based on reports submitted by the initiating offices in January and July each year. After these reports are consolidated for, and reviewed by, the Department Regulations Council, the Department's Regulations Agenda is prepared and published in the Federal Register. The Department's last agenda was published in the Federal Register on October 26, 1987 (52 FR 40549). The next one is scheduled for publication in the Federal Register in October 1988.

Regulatory Flexibility Act

In 1980, Congress passed the Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA), Pub. L. 96-354, which requires the designation of those regulations for which a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis will be prepared, i.e., those regulations that would have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. The heading "Small Entity" will indicate whether a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis is required by a "yes" or a "no." If a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis will be prepared for a particular rulemaking, that fact also will be noted under the heading "Analysis."

The RFA also requires that each year the Department publish a list of those regulations that have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities and are to be reviewed under the Act during the succeeding twelve months. The agenda includes those regulations to be reviewed under the RFA or those for which review has been concluded since the last agenda. A "yes" or "no" will be found under the heading "small entity," for each such regulation. However, it should be noted that, after a preliminary assessment of the regulations listed for RFA review, it may be found that the regulations, in fact, do not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities and a full RFA review will be unnecessary.

Regulatory Impact Analysis

A preliminary and final Regulatory Impact Analysis is required for each proposed and final regulation, respectively; that

(1) Is likely to result in:

(a) An annual effect on the economy of $100 million or more;

DOT

(b) A major effect on the general economy in terms of costs, consumer prices, or production;

(c) A major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individual industries; Federal, State, or local government agencies; or geographic regions;

(d) Significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation; or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets; or

(2) The Secretary or head of the initiating office determines requires such an analysis.

Definitions

The agenda covers all rules and regulations of the Department, including those that establish conditions for financial assistance. The following definitions are provided for ease in understanding the information in this document.

(1) Initiating office means an operating administration or other organizational element within the Department, the head of which is authorized by law or delegation to issue regulations or to formulate regulations for issuance by the Secretary.

(2) Significant regulation means a regulation that is not an emergency regulation and that in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, or the Secretary, or the Deputy Secretary

(a) Is a major regulation;

(b) Concerns a matter on which there is substantial public interest or controversy;

(c) Has a major impact on another operating administration or other parts of the Department or other Federal Agency;

(d) Has a substantial effect on State and local governments;

(e) Has a substantial impact on a major transportation safety problem;

(f) Initiates a substantial regulatory program or change in policy;

(g) Is substantially different from international requirements or standards; or

(h) Otherwise involves important Department policy.

(3) Major regulation means a significant regulation for which a

Regulatory Impact Analysis is required to be prepared.

(4) Emergency regulation means (a) a regulation that, in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, circumstances require to be issued without notice and opportunity for public comment or made effective in less than 30 days after publication in the Federal Register; or (b) is governed by short-term statutory or judicial deadlines.

(5) Nonsignificant regulation means a regulation that, in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, is neither a significant nor an emergency regulation.

Explanation of Information on the Agenda

The format for this agenda is required by Office of Management and Budget Bulletin No. 86-16 (July 2, 1986).

First, the agenda is divided by initiating offices. Then, in accordance with the OMB Bulletin, for each initiating office the agenda is divided into four categories: (1) Prerule stage, (2) proposed rule stage, (3) final rule stage, and (4) completed actions. For each entry, the agenda provides the following information: (1) The "significance" of the action (i.e., whether it is significant because it is on the Regulatory Program or because of agency priority; or whether it is nonsignificant or routine and frequent); (2) a short descriptive title; (3) the legal basis for the action being taken or the regulation being reviewed; (4) the related regulatory citation in the Code of Federal Regulations; (5) an indication of any legal deadline; (6) an abstract of the review or the proposed or final regulation; (7) a timetable, including the earliest expected date for a decision on whether to issue the proposed or final regulation, or complete the review and determine the corrective action to be taken. (The action taken can be revocation or revision of the regulation, or it can be a determination that no regulatory action is necessary because the regulation is found to be achieving its goals and the goals and objectives of Executive Order 12291 and the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures.); (8) a statement as to whether the Regulatory Flexibility Act applies because of the rulemaking's effect on small entities; (9) if there is information that does not fit in the other categories, it will be included under a separate heading, entitled "Additional Information"; (10) a listing, where determined, of any analyses an initiating office will prepare or has prepared for the rulemaking document; e.g., a Regulatory Impact Analysis or Evaluation, an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS), a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis, or an Urban Impact Analysis. (It should be noted that, even though a Regulatory Impact Analysis is not required for some items on the agenda, the Department requires an economic analysis for all of its regulations. This economic analysis is contained in the Regulatory Evaluation if a Regulatory Impact Analysis is not prepared); (11) an agency contact office or official who can provide further information, including advice on how to obtain documents referenced in the agenda; and (12) a Regulation Identifier Number (RIN) assigned solely to identify an individual action in the agenda.

For nonsignificant regulations issued routinely and frequently as a part of an established body of technical requirements (such as the Federal Aviation Administration's Airspace Rules) to keep those requirements operationally current, only the general category of the regulations, the identity of a contact office or official, and an indication of the expected number of regulations are included; individual regulations are not listed.

If a regulatory docket number has already been established, it may be provided under the "Additional Information" heading. If a member of the public desires further information regarding a particular proposal or regulation, reference should be made to this docket number.

In the "Timetable" column, abbreviations are used to indicate the particular documents being considered for issuance by that date. ANPRM stands for Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, SNPRM for Supplemental Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, NPRM for Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, and FR for Final Rule. Listing a future date in this column is not an indication that a proposed or a final rule will be issued on that date; it is the earliest date on which a decision is expected to be made on whether to issue the document listed. Submittal of any proposed or final rule to the Office of Management and Budget for review, under Executive Order 12291, must follow such a decision. For major rules, this review could take 60 days or more. If any document is issued, publication in the Federal Register would follow within a few days. In addition, these dates are based on current schedules. Information received subsequent to the issuance of this agenda could result in a decision not to take regulatory action or in changes to proposed publication dates. For example, the need for further evaluation could result in a later publication date; evidence of a greater need for the regulation could result in an earlier publication date.

Finally, a dot (●) preceding an entry indicates that the entry appears in the agenda for the first time.

Mailing Lists for Regulatory Documents

To assist the public in obtaining regulatory documents issued within the Department of Transportation, an Appendix A has been included in this document. The appendix contains instructions on how to be placed on mailing lists for, or to obtain, copies of regulatory documents, including the Department's Semiannual Regulations Agenda, issued by the operating administrations of the Department and the Office of the Secretary. There is no charge for this service; however, because of the costs involved, the number of copies of a document forwarded to an individual requestor may be limited. Persons already on mailing lists for particular documents within the Department will remain on those lists and should not reapply.

By following the instructions specified in the appendix, a person can be placed on a mailing list for future copies of the Department's Regulations Agenda, which will be updated and published in the Federal Register every year during April and October. By using the agenda, individuals can determine which Notice or Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, to be issued by elements of the Department, is of interest to them. Then, using the instructions in the appendix, such persons also can be placed on a mailing list to ensure that, after the document of interest is issued, a copy will be mailed to them for their review and comment. In this way, individuals will be relieved of the burden of having to review the Federal Register, perhaps on a daily basis. The Department expects that this process will ensure that those people placed on mailing lists will receive early notice so that their views on the document can be adequately prepared and presented within the established comment period.

General Rulemaking Contact Persons

To assist persons desiring to obtain general information concerning the rulemaking process within the Department's operating administrations, an Appendix B has been added to the agenda. This appendix sets forth the addresses and the telephone numbers of the persons who can respond quickly to requests for general rulemaking information. Please note, however, that questions related to particular rulemaking actions should still be referred to the contact person listed with the particular rulemaking on the agenda.

Public Rulemaking Dockets

To facilitate the inspection of docket files and the submission of comments by the public, an Appendix C sets forth the addresses and working hours for the Rules Docket for each operating administration.

Request for Comments

Agenda

Our agenda is intended primarily for the use of the public. Since its inception, we have made modifications and refinements that we believe provide the public with more helpful information as well as make the agenda easier to use. We would also like you, the public, to make suggestions or comments on how the agenda could be further improved. For example, do you find the information presented in an easily understandable manner? Do you find it easy to follow a regulation's development from agenda to agenda? Do you find that the format for setting out the information enables you to use the agenda easily? Do you find that the presentation of the information in the agenda is clearly explained in the preamble to the agenda? Your responses to these questions or any other comments or suggestions you may have should be sent to Neil R. Eisner, whose address appears above.

Reviews

In an effort to comply further with the spirit of Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, we are also seeking suggestions on existing regulations that should be included in our review of existing regulations; that is, which existing regulations issued by an operating administration of the Department or the Office of the Secretary do you believe need to be reviewed to determine whether they should be revised or revoked? The Department is particularly interested in obtaining information on requirements that have a "significant economic impact on small entities" and therefore, must be reviewed under the Regulatory Flexibility Act. If you have any suggested regulations, please send them, along with your explanation of why they should be reviewed, to the concerned operating administration or the Office of the Secretary, at the appropriate address noted in the "Addresses" paragraph above.

In accordance with the Regulatory Flexibility Act, comments are specifically invited on regulations that are targeted for review under the RFA. Those comments should be addressed to the "contact" person of the operating administration involved, at the appropriate address noted in the "Addresses" paragraph above.

Purpose

The Department is publishing this Regulations Agenda in the Federal Register to share with interested members of the public the Department's preliminary expectations regarding its future regulatory actions. This should enable the public to be more aware of the Department's regulatory activity. Knowledge of the nature and scope of this activity, as well as the specific proposals and reviews being considered, should result in more effective public participation in the Department's regulatory activity. For example, awareness of the dates when notices may be issued seeking public comment should allow appropriate planning and more efficient use of the comment period. By providing the expected date for a decision on whether to issue a final rule, the Department expects that more appropriate planning by those concerned with the regulation will also be possible. This publication in the Federal Register does not impose any binding obligation on the Department, or any of the offices within the Department, with regard to any specific item on the agenda. Regulatory action in addition to the items listed is not precluded. If further information is desired on any of the items listed in the agenda, the public is encouraged to contact the individual listed for the particular item. Additional information concerning the agenda, in general, or the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures may be obtained from Neil R. Eisner, whose address and telephone number appear above.

1537. + REVIEW OF DEPARTMENT-
WIDE DRUG REGULATIONSSignificance: Agency PriorityLegal Authority: Not yet determinedCFR Citation: Not yet determinedLegal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The Department will review existing regulations to determine whether changes are necessary for each of the Modal Administrations' drug regulations. The Department seeks to address the use of drugs through its regulatory authority. The review will encompass each Model Administration's program. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

CARRIERSSignificance: Regulatory ProgramLegal Authority: 49 USC 1371; 49 USC 1372; 49 USC 1381CFR Citation: 00 CFR NoneLegal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Transamerica petitioned the CAB to investigate ways to protect consumers against service defaults by scheduled air carriers in domestic, overseas, and foreign air transportation. Transamerica suggested that the Board condition the award of operating authority to perform direct carrier scheduled service on air carriers developing a default protection plan. For foreign air travel, it suggested that the obligation be limited to outbound flights. The petitioner argued that prompt action is necessary in order to ensure continued public confidence in scheduled air service and to protect passengers from unnecessary financial hardship. DOT is considering what action should be taken on the petition.

PROTECTION FOR AIRLINE TICKETSSignificance: Agency PriorityLegal Authority: 49 USC 1371; 49 USC 1372; 49 USC 1381CFR Citation: Not yet determinedLegal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This petition, filed by Mr. Theodore Harris, addresses the problem of airline passengers whose airline goes bankrupt after they bought their ticket but before they use it. The petitioner asks that airlines be required to protect such "unearned revenue" by escrowing it or by posting a bond in an amount equal to 150% of average unearned revenue. Exemptions could be granted to airlines which file evidence of ticket insurance plans or which enter into agreements with other airlines to accept the tickets of bankrupt carriers. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This petition proposes to amend the requirement that air carriers post cargo tariffs at stations, offices, and locations other than their principal office. The petitioners proposed to allow carriers to maintain a memorandum tariff at each location and have a toll-free number for shippers to obtain access to complete tariff information. Petitioners alleged that such a change would substantially reduce the cost and time burden of maintaining and continually updating voluminous files of current and past tariffs at each location. Further action on the proposal will depend on developments in rulemaking docket 43343, Electronic Filing of Tariffs, RIN 2105-AB00.

Abstract: This rule would amend regulations to allow cargo tariffs which are within the zones established under 14 CFR 399.41 to be filed on 30 days' notice. There are two alternatives: either maintain the status quo (60 days' notice) or change cargo tariff filing regulations to 30 days' notice to be consistent with passenger tariff-filing requirements. Standardization of the regulatory tariff-filing requirements for both cargo and passenger tariffs would benefit the industry.

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The Civil Aeronautics Board was an independent agency; its rules have now been transferred to DOT, a cabinet department. This review will identify any CAB rules which are not consistent with Department or Administration regulatory criteria, such as those that impose an unnecessarily high cost or those with paperwork burdens that can be reduced or which involve a level of benefits or costs which are either higher or lower than necessary. The review will examine all alternatives, from strengthening a given rule to eliminating it. Nonregulatory approaches, including the supplying of information by the Government, or regulation by another level of government, will be also considered. #### 1547. + ELECTRONIC FILING OF TARIFFS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1373

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 221

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: DOT will examine whether conversion from a paper document system to a computerized system of filing and monitoring air carrier tariffs can reduce paper flow, speed up processing, and allow the industry to utilize computer and telecommunications technology to communicate with DOT. The alternative is to maintain the current paper tariffs system. Potential savings to the industry may be greater than to the Government, since airlines already utilize automated fare and rate systems. In addition, airlines may be able to implement changes faster, thus responding more quickly to market conditions, and may be less burdened with the cost of producing and transmitting paper documents. The Department may reduce paper flow, experience savings in processing time and staffing, and improve the accuracy and control of tariff data. In order to assure that users' needs are taken into consideration and that the private sector is involved to the maximum extent in the design, implementation, and operation of such a system, the Department established an Advisory Committee to make continuing recommendations on technical, operational, and policy objectives of the electronic tariff system.

Legal Authority: 29 USC 794; Section 404(a) of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958, as amended

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 27; 14 CFR 382

Legal Deadline: Statutory, January 30, 1987.

Abstract: The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) had a regulation providing protection of the rights of handicapped air travellers. Based on recent Congressional action, DOT began enforcing this regulation on January 1, 1985. The Supreme Court's decision in U.S. Department of Transportation v. Paralyzed Veterans of America held that Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 does not apply to nonsubsidized air carriers. This decision left the existing regulation intact. The Air Carrier Access Act of 1986 directed DOT to publish new regulations prohibiting disability-based discrimination in air travel. The Department will use comments received in response to its August 1986 information notice on issues affecting blind passengers as part of the record for this rulemaking. The Department convened an advisory committee to pursue the rulemaking through a negotiated process. The negotiations have concluded and an NPRM is being drafted, based on the material developed in the committee.

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The CAB proposed new charter rules for direct and indirect air carriers. The proposed rules retain the financial protections of existing rules for direct air carriers while eliminating rules restricting the types of groups (such as "affinity" or "single-entity") to whom charters may be sold. The proposal would also retain a security instrument and depository system for indirect air carriers, along with contract rules for public protection. The proposal also highlights depository bank and travel agent responsibilities in handling passenger funds. The proposal replaces one made earlier. DOT is considering what action should be taken. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This rule would inform passengers of their right to a seat in a nonsmoking section of an aircraft by one of two proposed alternatives. Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The American Association of Airport Executives, the Airport Operators Council International and the Air Transport Association of America petitioned the CAB to simplify its counter-sign requirements. Presently, airlines are required to display four different consumer protection notices on their ticket counters. The petitioners alleged that the current notices are hard to read and, therefore, do not provide much notice to passengers. They proposed replacing the four notices with one simplified counter sign. The CAB adopted an NPRM that proposed a number of alternatives, such as a long and/or short notice, where the notices would be required to be posted and whether a smoking notice should be included. DOT is now considering what action to take in response to the notice and comments filed.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 215, (Revision)Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The Department must now routinely decide issues of name similarity whenever an airline wishes to use a different name for its operations or a new applicant wishes to use a name for its proposed operations. The issue arises even where there is no evidence that use of a certain name will cause or has caused confusion with an existing name. The current rule is duplicative of other statutes. The issue can be decided privately without routine, active government intervention, or can be handled on a case-by-case basis. The proposed rule would 1) delete specific criteria for decisions on name cases, 2) emphasize ad hoc enforcement, and 3) change the rule to make it a form of registration. Removal of routine intervention would reduce delay in applications for name changes. It would not result in less protection for travelers when there is a real need for action.

Abstract: The Department is reviewing its regulation establishing a minority business enterprise (MBE) program in its financial assistance programs (49 CFR Part 23). This regulation has been controversial, is of interest to most DOT grant recipients and contractors, and affects the operations of all DOT financial assistance programs. Section 106(c) of the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1987 (STURAA) extended and modified the program as applied to FHWA and UMTA; similar legislation applied the same requirements to the FAA. The Department issued a final rule to make the STURAA changes in October 1987; a similar rule for FAA programs is pending. The Department intends subsequently to issue an NPRM that would propose further changes in the regulation.

Abstract: This involves a revision of DOT's Freedom of Information Act regulations. Specific areas addressed include fees to be charged for search and reproduction costs and the establishment of more precise criteria to enable the Department to determine when a waiver of fees is in the public interest. It also addressed records relating to those functions of the Civil Aeronautics Board that were transferred to the Department. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest. It is needed to comply with recent statutory changes, including OMB and Department of Justice guidance, and periodic revisions to keep current with policy changes.

Abstract: In 1981, the Department proposed a consolidation and expansion of its existing Title VI regulation (49 CFR Part 21). Few comments were received on this NPRM, and a final regulation was never published. The Department reviewed the existing regulation to determine if changes were needed. However, because of the program established by Public Law 95-507, these proposed rules became unnecessary, and were never finalized. Abstract: The Coast Guard is proposing regulations that will establish safety standards for self-elevating offshore service vessels commonly known as liftboats. The high rate of casualties which have been experienced by these vessels has emphasized the need for specific regulations addressing the hazards inherent in their operations. These vessels support the offshore mineral and energy industry by performing a multitude of services such as dive support, painting, sandblasting and well servicing, among others. In performing these services, these vessels fall within the statutory definition of Offshore Supply Vessels (OSV) and are therefore subject to inspection as OSVs. The Coast Guard will consider using existing standards wherever possible, particularly those that have and are being applied to conventional OSVs. However, because of the unique design and operating characteristics exhibited by these liftboats, many of the current regulations used to inspect and certificate conventional OSVs are inadequate to ensure the safe operation of these vessels. The Coast Guard believes that development and enforcement of standards specifically addressing these (CONT)

On February 14, 1983, the Coast Guard published an ANPRM concerning new construction of Offshore Supply Vessels (OSVs) (48 FR 6636). The information in the ANPRM presents the Coast Guard's overall approach with respect to developing comprehensive standards for conventional offshore supply vessels as contrasted with liftboats and other nonconventional OSVs. On March 7, 1985, the Coast Guard published an ANPRM on Revision of the Regulations on Outer Continental Shelf Activities (50 FR 9290). That ANPRM (CGD 84-098) solicited specific comments regarding appropriate standards that should be applied to the various types of vessels used for OCS activities. Some comments were received that addressed liftboats. These comments will be considered with the comments received in response to this rulemaking effort.

Currently OSVs holding two year certificates of inspection are reinspected between the 10th and 14th month of the certificate's period. In recent years, more OSVs have been based overseas in remote locations. Vessel owners must reimburse the Coast Guard for inspector travel and per diem costs in connection with foreign inspections. This action would propose an alternative to the traditional Coast Guard mid-period reinspection. The benefits would be flexibility and financial savings to the OSV industry and more effective use of Coast Guard resources.Timetable:

Abstract: This rulemaking would require marine dealers to furnish boat and engine manufacturers with serial numbers of new boats and engines sold and the names and addresses of retail first purchasers of those products. Manufacturers would use the information to locate purchasers of boats and engines recalled for defects which create a substantial risk of personal injury to the public and for failures to comply with applicable regulations. Currently many manufacturers cannot obtain sufficient first-purchaser information and their attempts to notify during recalls are inadequate.

Review and re-exchange of drafts currently being considered. Both governments agree on channel 13. #### 1697. REVIEW OF MEDICAL STANDARDS AND CERTIFICATION PROCEDURES

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1354(a) Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 313(a); 49 USC 1355 Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 314; 49 USC 1421 Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 601; 49 USC 1427 Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 607

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 67

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: These regulations specify the medical standards which must be met before a medical certificate is issued to an airman. For example, a medical certificate is required before a person can obtain a pilot license. During rulemaking involving these regulations, a considerable number of commenters expressed the belief that the current standards should and could be revised to state, in generally applicable objective terms, all those circumstances in which the FAA will issue medical certificates. In the past, some certificates have been issued on a case-by-case basis, with appropriate limitations, under exemption and waiver provisions where strict compliance with the existing standards was not essential in the interest of safety. A comprehensive review of these regulations is necessary to determine if the commenters' arguments are correct. If they are and the requested regulatory changes are possible, it could greatly reduce burdens, both on the FAA and airmen,

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 11.65; 14 CFR 73

Abstract: The proposed establishment or modification of prohibited airspace over these sites is one segment of a Department of Energy (DOE) comprehensive effort to enhance the protection of vital nuclear weapons research, development, and production facilities. If established, helicopter operations at any altitude over the designated sites would be prohibited without prior DOE authorization. This rulemaking is significant because it may be controversial. A summary of written and oral comments received in response to notices and hearings was sent to the DOE February 22, 1985, for them to address. DOE has conducted an indepth review of security at all sites. A draft final report is undergoing internal DOE coordination. Upon completion, DOE will decide if they will proceed with, modify, or withdraw part or all of their request for a proposed rule.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: None

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 121

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This action proposes to revise the regulation dealing with the required number of flight attendants to clarify the original intent of the regulation. The current regulations are confusing and not clearly understood. The proposed amendments would clarify the number of flight attendants required when passengers are onboard an airplane, during specified periods, and proposals would allow for a reduced number of flight attendants onboard an airplane during specified periods. The proposals would specify the conditions to be met to reduce the number of flight attendants at these stops. Additionally, the proposals would allow other authorized persons to be substituted for the required flight attendants at these stops, and would clearly establish the requirements for training for those authorized persons. A proposed new rule would clarify where the required flight attendants and other persons must be located when they are onboard the airplane.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 21

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This notice would propose to amend the Federal Aviation Regulations to permit certain aircraft product changes to be accomplished under amended type certification or supplemental type certification procedure in lieu of applying for a new type certificate. The granting of several exemptions emphasized the need for a review of established criteria mandating an application for a new type certificate. The availability of advanced, high performance, light-weight engines and superior replacement systems requires this rule change for the upgrading of older seasoned designs to increase safety, utility, performance, and reliability, and reduce operational cost. The rule remains unchanged for aircraft product modifications which are so extensive that a substantially complete investigation of compliance is required.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1354; 49 USC 1421; 49 USC 1423; 49 USC 1431

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 36

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Part 36 prescribes noise standards for type certification of airplanes. A new generation of aircraft powered by prop-fan engines may present a noise problem that is not currently addressed by Part 36 in that en route noise at cruise altitude (25,000 to 30,000 ft) may require a new standard. This proposal would establish a new standard to control high altitude flyover noise from these new types of aircraft.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Notice will propose to amend Part 25 of the Federal Aviation Regulations (FAR) to upgrade the structural requirements for transport category airplane pressurized cabins by (1) amending the criteria for evaluation of the secondary effects of openings in the pressure vessel, and (2) extending the area of consideration to include openings anywhere within the pressure vessel. The required opening sizes to be considered would not be changed. The proposal is the result of an FAA review of the pressurized cabin load requirements and is intended to make the pressurized cabin load requirements less design-dependent and more objective. It would require evaluation of openings in any pressurized compartment and examination of the effects of differential pressure loads on any critical structure inside or outside of the pressurized cabin.

1762. + LOW-ALTITUDE WINDSHEAR EQUIPMENT REQUIREMENTS FOR TAKEOFFS/LANDINGS OF TRANSPORT CATEGORY AIRPLANES*Significance: Regulatory ProgramLegal Authority: 49 USC 1354(a) Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 313(a); 49 USC 1421 Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 601; 49 USC 1424 Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 604CFR Citation: 14 CFR 135Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This notice proposes to require that all turbojet-powered airplanes operated in accordance with Part 121 have airborne systems that warn a flightcrew of the presence of low-altitude windshear conditions and then provide flight guidance to follow that would produce the optimal flight path for a missed approach procedure. This proposal would require that any Part 121 operator using an approved simulator as a part of its training program develop a specific windshear-related simulator flight training course for its flightcrews. This proposal would require that Part 121 and 135 operators using an approved training program include training concerning the low-altitude windshear phenomenon as a part of their normal ground training. Low-altitude windshear has been a prime causal factor in numerous air carrier accidents and possibly has contributed to a number of general aviation accidents.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 145

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This notice proposes to update the regulations for certifying foreign repair stations to accommodate the increasing demand for maintenance and alteration of U.S.-registered aircraft manufactured worldwide. This proposal would (1) modify the requirement for determination of need before a foreign repair station may be considered for U.S. certification, and (2) modify the limitations on the scope of work that a foreign repair station may perform on U.S.-registered aircraft, engines, propellers, appliances, and component parts for use on U.S.-registered aircraft. In addition, it is proposed that a foreign or domestic manufacturer, or a product for which it holds a U.S. type certificate and that is certificated by the FAA as a repair station, be allowed to return to service a component maintained or altered by a noncertificated source subject to specified conditions. Lastly, to be consistent with the air carrier operating rules, the air taxi/commercial operator rules would be amended to permit the airworthiness release to be signed by a person authorized by a U.S.-certificated foreign repair station.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 61

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This final rule would establish a recreational pilot certificate which would allow a student pilot to receive certification to fly certain aircraft after fewer hours of training than are currently required of a private pilot applicant. The recreational pilot certificate is intended to be a low-cost alternative to a private pilot certificate for persons interested in flying basic, experimental, or homebuilt aircraft in close proximity to a home airport that is not in airspace in which communication with an air traffic control facility is required. The rule would also establish an annual flight review requirement for noninstrument-rated private pilots with fewer than 400 flight hours. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest and safety implications.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 27; 14 CFR 29Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This project proposes to amend the rotorcraft airworthiness standards in Parts 27 and 29 of the FAR. These proposals would add two dynamic crash-impact design requirement conditions for seat and occupant restraint systems, increase the static design load factors for seating devices and items of mass in the cabin or adjacent to the cabin as prescribed, prescribe a shoulder harness for each occupant, and add human impact injury criteria for the dynamic crash-impact conditions. These proposals are intended to significantly improve occupant protection levels in a survivable emergency landing impact. This rulemaking is significant because of the obvious safety improvements in crash situations, but also because of industry and operator concerns as to incurred costs due to increased weight and design effort.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 21; 14 CFR 36Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Would revise noise certification standards for propeller-driven small airplanes to substitute the use of actual takeoff tests for the level flyover tests currently specified. This proposal would revise test procedures applicable to noise certification tests conducted on or after January 1, 1988. It would also revise the noise-level limit numbers to approximate the equivalent of the sound levels measured and corrected in accordance with the current standard. These proposals result from industry requests for certification to be more directly based upon typical inservice noise measurements and from studies conducted in several nations over a three-year period under the auspices of the International Civil Aviation Organization. In addition, the FAA proposes to exempt antique airplanes and changes involving the addition of floats or skis from the acoustical change measurement and documentation requirements of Part 21. This regulation is significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: Would revise both noise certification standards and operating noise rules to ensure that aircraft certificated within certain broad noise groups or "stages" remain within those stages. Those proposals would apply to transport category large aircraft and to turbojet powered aircraft regardless of category. The proposed rule would prohibit modification of both individual airplanes and whole airplane types where those modifications would result in the growth of noise beyond the limits of the airplane's current stage. While the proposal would not restrict airplane changes that result in lower noise, it would in some cases prohibit re-modification of those aircraft to return to their original noise levels. The FAA believes that these rules are necessary to correct a defect in the current regulations and to protect airports, aircraft operators and the public from the effects of that defect. This rulemaking is significant because of intense public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25; 14 CFR 121

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This action would amend the regulations to require an independent power source for the public address (PA) system in certain transport category airplanes. The requirement would be applicable to future type certification of airplanes that are required to have PA systems for use in air carrier service and to such airplanes manufactured after a specified date, regardless of the date of application for type certificate. This rulemaking is considered significant because it involves an important cabin-safety issue.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 21; 14 CFR 25; 14 CFR 121

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This notice proposes to limit increases in passenger emergency escape path distance by establishing a new standard limiting the distance any passenger seat may be from the nearest emergency exit and the distance any exit may be from an adjacent exit. The proposal would make the standard applicable to type certification of new transport category airplane models, regardless of the date of original application for type certificate, and to airplanes operating under Part 121, except those already in operation. The standard would be applicable for issuance of standard airworthiness certificates for airplanes manufactured after the NPRM date. The proposal is a result of the recent public Emergency Evacuation Task Force and is intended to improve the likelihood of passengers safely escaping an airplane during an emergency evacuation; for this reason the rulemaking is considered significant.

1773. + INSTALLATION OF TRAFFIC CONTROL AVOIDANCE SYSTEM IN DOMESTIC TRANSPORT CATEGORY AIRPLANES*Significance: Agency PriorityLegal Authority: NoneCFR Citation: 14 CFR 121; 14 CFR 25Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This notice proposes to require the installation and use of a Traffic Alert and Collision Avoidance System (TCAS) in large transport type airplanes and certain turbine powered smaller airplanes. TCAS, which utilizes the signal from existing transponders, would provide for a collision avoidance capability in the cockpit independent of the ground Air Traffic Control (ATC) system, or where there is no ATC coverage. Additionally, the notice proposes that all operators of TCAS-equipped airplanes have an FAA-approved TCAS training program for flight crewmembers. This rulemaking is considered significant because it involves important departmental policy.

Abstract: Proposes to establish a single-class TCA having common pilot and equipment requirements. This proposed action is consistent with determinations made by the National Airspace Review and FAA TCA Review Teams that different classifications of TCA airspace are outdated and no longer valid, and that all aircraft, including helicopters, should operate under a single set of pilot and equipment requirements. Additionally, this proposal would require a Mode C transponder on all aircraft within 30 nautical miles of a TCA primary airport. This rulemaking is considered significant because it is controversial, involving substantial public interest.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: PL 100-91; 49 USC 1348

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 199; 14 CFR 135

Legal Deadline: Statutory, May 27, 1988. PL 100-91 requires a final rule within 90 days of the date DOI submitted recommendations to the FAA, or by 3/28/88. However, if the recommendations would have adverse impacts on aviation safety, a final rule must be issued within 60 days of the finding. The latest possible date is 5/27/88.

Abstract: PL 100-91, signed on August 18, 1987, required the Department of Interior to submit recommendations to the FAA for regulation of aircraft overflight of the Grand Canyon. DOI submitted its recommendations to FAA on December 29, 1987. The law further requires that FAA adopt regulations which implement the DOI recommendations. This rulemaking fulfills that requirement.

After further review of the comments from the public, the FAA concluded that provisions in that notice could be accomplished with less paperwork, and the concept could be further modified to conform to other pertinent regulations. The supplemental NPRM proposed to permit rotorcraft and nonturbine powered airplanes (for which a master minimum equipment list has not been developed), that are not being utilized in an air carrier operation, to be operated with certain inoperative instruments and equipment. Furthermore, this supplemental NPRM proposed to permit flight operations with certain inoperative instruments and equipment for small multiengine rotorcraft and nonturbine-powered small multiengine airplanes (for which a master minimum equipment list has been developed and that are not being utilized in an air carrier operation) the option of selecting the minimum equipment (cont)

Abstract: Part 36 prescribes noise type certification standards for turbo jet powered airplanes and propeller driven small airplanes regardless of category. This review will examine the need to reorganize and realign the noise standards to make them more understandable and easier to use. This review would reorganize existing material into several new subparts, and utilize an improved numbering system to provide for the easier inclusion of future changes. Other improvements would be made by deleting redundancies, obsolete compliance dates, and making other minor changes. CFR Citation: 14 CFR 150

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Part 150 of the Federal Aviation Regulations prescribes requirements for airport operators who voluntarily choose to submit compatibility planning programs to the FAA. Operators of airports whose maps and programs have been accepted by the FAA as meeting the Part 150 standards are then eligible to apply for funding noise-control projects under the Airport Improvement Program and are further afforded certain legal rights under the law. The current rule includes heliports that are located on public-use airports; the proposed rule would extend coverage to free-standing public-use heliports.

An initial review of Part 31 to determine whether a full regulatory flexibility analysis of this part is required has been completed. No section of Part 31 was found to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. Therefore, a regulatory flexibility review of Part 31 is not required. This review was completed as required by the Regulatory Flexibility Act of 1980 and no further action is necessary.

Abstract: The FHWA has determined that the issues associated with its authority to permit motor carriers to self-insure need to be examined in light of the insurance crisis affecting the motor carrier industry. The FHWA is seeking public comment from interested parties concerning self-insurance as a viable and effective mechanism for demonstrating financial responsibility as required by the Motor Carrier Act of 1980. This rulemaking action is considered significant because of the public interest in the issue being considered.

Abstract: Sections 207-209 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984 establish a process whereby any State law or regulation pertaining to commercial motor vehicle safety in interstate commerce will be reviewed and analyzed by the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Regulatory Review Panel (Safety Panel). The Safety Panel is to determine if such law or regulation has the same effect as, is less stringent than, or is additional to or more stringent than the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations. Based on the determination of the Safety Panel, the Secretary is to initiate a rulemaking proceeding to determine if such a law or regulation may remain in effect and enforced. This advance notice of proposed rulemaking is the initial rulemaking action for any possible preemptive action by the Secretary. It will contain alternatives for comment on ways the Secretary may satisfy the requirements of section 208 of the Act.

Abstract: The FHWA is requesting comments on a proposal which would mandate chemical testing of interstate drivers of commercial motor vehicles for the use of drugs. The impetus for this action is the safety and health concern associated with the use of drugs by these personnel. The goal of the proposed rule is to reduce accidents and casualties that result from the use of drugs. This NPRM was preceded by two drug rulemaking actions which were published in the Federal Register on 5/13/86 (BMCS Docket No. MC-116, Amendment No. 83-17, 51 FR 17568; BMCS Docket No. MC-120, Notice No. 86-3, 51 FR 17572). The latter of those actions proposed a drug test plan (much less comprehensive than proposed here) for drivers of hazardous materials. The former requested comments on specific questions regarding the various aspects of a drug control program applicable to interstate drivers. The intent of this

NPRM is to consolidate the subject matter of the previous actions and propose a comprehensive drug control program applicable to all drivers in interstate commerce. Because the impact of this proposal (cont)

Abstract: In response to Section 12008 of the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1986, the FHWA requested comments on the establishment of a commercial driver blood alcohol concentration (BAC) standard for "driving under the influence." Also in response to Section 12008 of the Act, the National Academy of Sciences (NAS) conducted a study on the appropriateness of selecting one of several alternative BAC levels as the level at which a person operating a commercial motor vehicle would be deemed to be driving under the influence of alcohol. Based on the results of the study and the rulemaking comments, the Secretary of Transportation must promulgate a commercial driver BAC standard. States would be required to enact laws providing that any driver who operates a commercial motor vehicle at the Federal BAC level or above it is deemed to be driving under the influence of alcohol. States not enacting a BAC-level law for commercial motor vehicle drivers risk the loss of Federal-aid highway funds. The comments received were available to the NAS and served as the docket comments, along with the NAS study for a future Notice of Proposed Rulemaking.

Proposed Rule Stage

Abstract: This regulation proposes to consolidate and amend existing air quality requirements for transportation projects into a single amended air quality regulation. The amended regulation is intended to streamline and simplify (1) the process of determining which highway projects are exempt from the Federal assistance limitations of section 176(a) of the Clean Air Act (CAA), and (2) the conformity and priority procedures contained in 23 CFR 770. The amendments are also intended to provide more authority and flexibility to State and local agencies and to meet the objectives of the CAA in the most cost-effective and expeditious manner. The amendments are significant because they involve important departmental policy.

The proposed revisions would require private motor carriers of passengers and drivers of private motor vehicles of passengers to operate under the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR). However, the paperwork burden of these requirements will be minimized and several parts of the FMCSR will not apply to either private motor carriers of passengers or to drivers of such vehicles. This rulemaking is significant in that it is controversial, involving bringing new carriers under the regulatory scheme.

1824. PAVEMENT POLICY

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 23 USC 109(a)(b)(c); 23 USC 315; 23 USC 101(e); 23 USC 402

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 626; 23 CFR 625

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The existing regulation on pavement design would be modified to eliminate unnecessary requirements and duplicative provisions. Currently, the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) uses the "American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials (AASHTO) Interim Guide for Design of Pavement Structures, 1972," Chapter III Revised, 1981, to evaluate the adequacy of the proposed pavement designs for Federal-aid projects. AASHTO has approved a new Pavement Design Guide. FHWA will solicit public comment on the revised guide and adopt it for application on Federal-aid projects as a guide, not standard. It will be acceptable for State highway agencies to design pavement structures based upon other procedures and practices that by past performance have proven satisfactory for the pertinent conditions. If a State highway agency elects to use procedures other than AASHTO's, the procedures will require FHWA approval. The FHWA will check or review pavement design in accordance with procedures approved by the State highway agency. Each State highway agency will be required to have a pavement management system.

The revisions seek to assist the various segments of the truck and bus industries in their efforts to comply with the FMCSR by (1) incorporating definitions from the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984; (2) clarifying and updating the regulations; (3) eliminating redundancy; (4) combining and locating in a single place the definitions of many general items presently located throughout the FMCSR; and (5) addressing comments concerning the elimination of certain regulatory exemptions.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 2314; 49 USC
3102; Section 414 of STAA of 1982

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 393

Legal Deadline: Statutory, April 2, 1988.

Abstract: Section 414 of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 (Pub. L. 97-424) states that Congress declares the visibility on wet roadways in the Interstate System should be improved by reducing splash and spray from truck tractors, semitrailers and trailers. Congress instructed the Secretary to establish, by regulation, minimum standards with respect to the performance and installation of splash and spray suppression devices on truck tractors, semitrailers and trailers. Further, Congress mandated that all vehicles in use 5 years from date of enactment be equipped with such devices. The revisions to 49 CFR 393 will implement this mandate. This rulemaking is considered significant because of its economic impact on the motor carrier industry. Section 205 of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1987 (P.L. 100-17) establishes a deadline of 4/2/88 for final action unless the Secretary determines that insufficient technology exists upon which to base a final rule.

Final Rule Stage

1845. + SAFETY FITNESS DETERMINATION*Significance: Regulatory ProgramLegal Authority: PL 98-554, Sec 215; 49 USC 3102CFR Citation: 49 CFR 385Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Section 215 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984 requires the FHWA, in cooperation with the Interstate Commerce Commission, to establish a procedure to determine the safety fitness of owners and operators of commercial motor vehicles including persons seeking new or additional operating authority as motor carriers. Comments were requested regarding the proposed changes in the current safety rating procedures and a new proposal for those carriers who have not previously been assigned a safety rating or who intend to be a new entrant into the motor carrier industry. It has been determined that this rulemaking action is a significant regulation under the regulatory policies and procedures of the Department of Transportation because of the total estimated indirect benefits that may result.

Abstract: An ANPRM had been issued requesting public comment on a petition to designate a particular combination of vehicles as specialized equipment under the provisions of section 411(d) of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 (STAA). The final rule will now implement section 324 of the House Bill 5205 which was incorporated into law by section 302 of the Act Making Continuing Appropriations for Fiscal Year 1987, Pub. L. 99-591, 101 Stat. 3341, enacted on October 16, 1986. This section amended section 411(c) of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 to authorize the "maxi-cube" vehicle to operate on the National Network in the same way as vehicles previously authorized by that section. The "maxi-cube" vehicle is a particular combination of vehicles described in the law. This action also withdraws the advance notice of proposed rulemaking (ANPRM) published at 50 FR 52940 (12/27/85) and 51 FR 7085 (Supplemental notice: 2/28/86) on the designation of the "maxi-cube" design as specialized equipment under section 411(d) of the STAA of 1982.

Initially, FHWA had considered issuing a new regulation as a vehicle for accelerating Federal-aid projects pursuant to Section 129 of the STAA of 1982. However, it has been determined that the objectives of Section 129 can be best implemented by revisions to existing regulations. Therefore, separate regulations will not be issued regarding the acceleration program. This approach received the concurrence of Deputy Administrator Lamm on April 11, 1984. The revised regulation would permit States to increase the maximum time interval between the inspections for certain types or groups of bridges, as opposed to retaining the mandatory 2-year interval as required by regulations currently in effect. The proposed revisions would also require that States identify those bridges having fracture critical members or bridges which warrant underwater inspection consideration. The proposed revisions would provide State highway agencies greater flexibility with which to use available inspection resources in a cost-effective manner. It is intended that the proposed revisions would encourage efficient use of resources while ensuring that the safety of the traveling public is protected.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Abstract: The FHWA issued an interim final rule to redefine "environmental restoration" as that term is used in FHWA's financial responsibility regulations. This action was taken in response to a joint petition filed by the American Insurance Association (AIA) and the American Trucking Associations (ATA), and because of the current insurance crisis facing the motor carrier industry. This action made clear the motor carriers are required to provide evidence of financial responsibility to satisfy claims for damage to human health and to the environment, including necessary restoration costs, but not for potential or speculative damages for which they would not otherwise be found liable.

pertaining to commercial motor vehicle safety. On November 23, 1984, the FHWA published a final rule at 49 FR 46145 regarding Hours of Service in order to comply with an opinion of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. A docket was opened (MC-99-1) in order to request comments for further consideration of revisions to the requirement of the driver's record of duty status. Pursuant to section 206 of the Act, an ANPRM was issued (1/23/85; 50 FR 2998) and again requested comments regarding the requirement for recorded hours of service. This final rule incorporated all comments received to the above mentioned published rulemaking actions. This document eliminated certain items required on the driver's record of duty status and extends the 12-hour limitation in the 100-mile radius exemption to 15 hours or permitting a 50-mile radius rule as an option with the 15-hour rule. This rulemaking is considered significant because of the potential cost savings which may result from (con't)

Abstract: A petition was received from the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety (IIHS) on November 8, 1985. It requests that the Federal lighting regulation (FMVSS No. 108) be changed to allow installation of daytime running lights (DRLs) by original equipment manufacturers. Although the existing standard does not specifically prohibit DRLs, some changes to FMVSS No. 108 would be required to accommodate various suggested DRL configurations. NHTSA has exchanged information with Transport Canada on DRLs, and on the evaluation of effectiveness of various DRL configurations. Canada issued a proposed regulation which would require that new vehicles be equipped with DRLs. The agency would like to ensure that changes made in FMVSS No. 108 are compatible with the final technical specifications of Transport Canada. NHTSA plans to take action on the IIHS petition now that the Canadian NPRM is published. Proceeding is significant because of the importance of keeping pace with the Canadian action.

1888. FEDERAL MOTOR VEHICLE SAFETY STANDARD NO. 301 - FUEL-SYSTEM INTEGRITY

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1401; 15 USC 1403; 15 USC 1407

DOT—NHTSA

Prerule Stage

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.301Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This standard, which is applicable to passenger cars, light trucks, and school buses, specifies requirements for the integrity of motor vehicle fuel systems. The purpose of the standard is to reduce deaths and injuries caused by fires which result from fuel spillage after motor vehicle crashes. This evaluation follows up and expands on a prior study on passenger cars which showed that, while the regulation was effective in preventing deaths and injuries, the incidence of crash fires appeared to be increasing. This evaluation will also provide the initial assessment of the regulation as it applies to light trucks.

This standard would replace Standard No. 121, Air Brake Systems, and that portion of Standard No. 105, Hydraulic Brake Systems, that applies to vehicles with a GVWR over 10,000 pounds. It would also establish new requirements for heavy trailers having other than air-actuated brakes. In developing the standard, the agency will consider compatibility with international regulations. Research programs in support of this new standard and possible future upgradings of the standard will investigate such long-term advanced braking system concepts as antilock systems, automatic brake adjusters, load-sensing proportioning valves, air driers, and retarders for heavy trucks, buses, and trailers. This rule is considered significant because of the level of public and Congressional interest. It is necessary to prevent and reduce the severity of accidents involving heavy vehicles by providing increased accident avoidance capability.

DOT—NHTSA

Proposed Rule Stage

Abstract: Section 612(a)(4) of the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act provides that NHTSA shall exempt from the reporting requirements of 49 CFR 544 any insurer (rentals or leasing company) that can establish to the agency that the cost of preparing and furnishing the report is excessive in relation to the size of the business of the insurer, and that the insurer's report will not significantly contribute to carrying out the purposes of Title VI. The Preamble to 49 CFR 544 provides instructions to rental or leasing companies wishing to be exempted from the reporting requirements. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 2314

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 583

Legal Deadline: None. Standard for new vehicles is now required to take effect one year after final rule is published.

Abstract: In accordance with the mandate of section 414 of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982, would establish minimum standards with respect to the performance of splash and spray suppression devices on truck tractors, semitrailers and trailers. Would also establish minimum standards with respect to the installation of splash and spray suppression devices on new vehicles.

Additional Information: NHTSA's rulemaking would only affect new vehicles and equipment. However, section 414 of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act also mandates that the Department of Transportation establish minimum standards with respect to the installation of splash and spray devices for vehicles already in service. The Federal Highway Administration will conduct the rulemaking to satisfy that mandate. The Federal Highway Administration has classified its rulemaking as major. The costs of that rulemaking are expected to be much greater than NHTSA's rulemaking since (1) the population of vehicles in service is many times the annual production of new trucks, (2) a truck manufacturer will pay less per unit for each splash and spray suppression device when ordered in large quantities, and (3) the labor time to install the devices is far less for a new truck manufacturer, since it can be done at the assembly plant. In 1984, the Surface Transportation Assistance Act was amended to change the implementation date from 1/1/85, for new vehicles and 1/1/88, for vehicles in service, to one year after publication of the Final Rule for new vehicles & 3 years later for vehicles in service.

1927. + POST-1986 PASSENGER CAR FUEL-ECONOMY STANDARDS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 15 USC 2002

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 531

Legal Deadline: Statutory, September 1, 1988. Amendments reducing the fuel economy standard for a particular model year are required to be made by the beginning of a model year.

Abstract: General Motors (GM) and Ford have petitioned for reduction of the passenger car average fuel economy standards for Model Year 1986 and beyond. The Center for Auto Safety and the Environmental Policy Institute petitioned to raise the standards for Model Years 1987 through 1990. All of these petitions were addressed in rulemakings which reduced the standard from 27.5 miles per gallon (mpg) to 26.0 mpg for Model Years 1986 through 1988 (10/06/86, 51 FR 35594). Further rulemaking action, for Model Years 1989 and beyond, is undetermined at this time, pending potential legislative action to repeal or amend the CAFE legislation.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Abstract: Proposes a comprehensive review of headlighting requirements of FMVSS No. 108 which may be simplified, while being consistent with motor-vehicle safety. The agency has concentrated its efforts into five principal areas. The first is the feasibility of a standard directed toward onboard original equipment headlighting performance rather than toward performance of individual aftermarket headlamps in a laboratory environment. The second is the desirability of specifications for headlamp life. The third concerns the necessity of dimensional specifications for headlamp equipment. The fourth is the issue of headlamp aim. The fifth is the elimination of obsolete photometric requirements.

The type of light source proposed was that currently used in European headlamps, the type H-4. Review of the merits of the petition found that, as used in Europe, the light source was not capable of achieving the level of performance required of U.S. light sources and NHTSA subsequently proposed a U.S. version to be known as the type HB2, which would have interchangeability and performance aspects compatible with U.S. safety needs. Comments by the U.S. and foreign lighting and vehicle manufacturers led to a supplemental notice.

A final rule was issued which deleted the requirement that stopping-distance information be provided to first purchasers of new passenger cars and motorcycles at the time the vehicle is delivered to the first purchaser. The agency took this action because the primary purpose of consumer information is to permit prospective purchasers to obtain as much comparative information as possible before deciding which particular model to buy. Information provided after the consumer has purchased the vehicle cannot serve that purpose.

It requested that a requirement, for no light to be projected to the left or above the final position of a headlamp beam during the operation of a concealed headlamp from closed to open or vice versa, be changed to a performance test. Abstract: Mr. Verne L. Agency review of the petition concluded that built-in child restraint systems could provide a level of safety at least equal to that provided by add-on child restraint systems and possibly could be easier to use. Accordingly, the agency will permit the use of built-in child restraints.

Abstract: The purpose of this proposal is to eliminate the use of dangerous drugs by operators of mass transit vehicles or other transit safety sensitive workers. The proposal would require a recipient of Federal transit grants to certify that it has established a drug program consistent with the requirements of the regulation and providing for chemical testing of safety sensitive employees on a random basis as well as for pre-employment, post-accident, and reasonable suspicion.

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 611

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This regulation would set out the process applicants for grants under the UMT Act (49 USC 1601 et seq.) and the Federal-Aid Highway Act should follow in order to be eligible for Federal financial assistance for major urban mass transportation investments. A major urban mass transportation investment is any project that involves the construction of a new fixed guideway for use by buses or rail vehicles. This regulation is significant because it involves important departmental policy.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1602(f); 49 USC 1608(c)

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 604

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This rulemaking would amend the regulation that implements section 3(f) of the UMT Act regarding charter bus operations by UMTA recipients. The amendment would concern the ability of certain nonprofit entities to obtain handicap-accessible vehicles for charter service, or to receive service that otherwise would be unavailable to them. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

Additional Information: Former title: Charter Bus Operations. On April 13, 1987, UMTA published its final rule on charter bus service. Under this regulation a recipient of UMTA funds is prohibited from providing any charter service using UMTA funded equipment or facilities if there is at least one available charter operator willing and able to provide the charter service that the recipient proposes to provide. Congress is concerned that, under the requirements of this regulation, nonprofit entities may not be able to afford the services of private charter operators, or, in the case of certain organizations, obtain the necessary handicap-accessible vehicles for charter service. This amendment would address those concerns.

Abstract: The threshold for the aviation-information program for regulatory flexibility analysis is 60 seats or maximum payload of 18,000 pounds or less. Carriers operating aircraft under these limits are considered small carriers. FAA, on the other hand, uses a threshold based on the operational certificate requirements (Part 121 versus Part 135) with the threshold established at 30 seats or maximum payload of 7,500 pounds for a Part 135 certificate. FAA regulatory analysis for safety, congestion, etc., centers around the lower threshold which means much of the aviation economic information that they use has to be manipulated to fit their needs. This proposal of standardizing the threshold within the Department would save considerable resources and would eliminate much confusion in the air transportation industry. Most carriers, especially the newer ones, are familiar with FAA's requirements. This rulemaking is significant because it will achieve consistency in departmental treatment.

Abstract: Currently commuter air carriers providing scheduled passenger service file two quarterly traffic schedules. One schedule summarizes nine traffic elements while the other schedule provides the origination and destination for all the carriers' on-line passengers. The Department is considering proposing a new traffic and market data system for certificated and foreign air carriers. These definitions have become outmoded in the process of air-fare deregulation. In addition, first class and coach passengers are defined in terms of the type of fare paid with premium or standard fares being the benchmark for first class. With deregulation and the proliferation of new air fares in the marketplace, these definitions may also be outmoded. The DOT is considering several options for revising these definitions.

2000. ● + OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE PROCEDURES FOR GAS PIPELINES

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192

Legal Deadline: None.

DOT-RSPA

Proposed Rule Stage

Abstract: Adequate procedures for pipeline operation and maintenance, backed up by personnel training, have proven effective in minimizing the potential for accidents. Gas operators are required to have such procedures, but the existing requirements lack the clarity and specificity needed to assure a uniform, broad-based level of safety for all pipelines. Therefore, this proposal would clarify the existing requirements, make them more comprehensive, and, where appropriate, similar to the more detailed requirements applicable to the operation and maintenance of hazardous liquid pipelines. This is a significant action because of the need for adequate procedures to provide a basis for training and qualifying operator personnel.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 2002

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 195

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Recent accidents involving petroleum product pipelines demonstrate the potential for catastrophic losses if a large spill occurs in a populated area. Studies have shown that accidents attributable to hidden material or construction defects can be prevented by restricting operation to not more than 80 percent of a prior test or operating pressure. In this regard, significant results have been achieved by imposing such an operating restriction on those product pipelines that carry highly volatile liquids. This rule would extend this existing safety standard to all product pipelines. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest in the safety implications.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 2002(e)

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 195

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Each year a large percentage of hazardous liquid pipeline accidents are caused by excavation damage. Experience has shown that excavation accident rates diminish when operators participate in "one-call" damage prevention programs. The Federal gas pipeline safety regulations now require that gas operators participate in such programs. This action would apply a similar requirement to operators of hazardous liquid pipelines. This is a significant action because of the widespread interest in the use of "one-call" programs to prevent damage to buried pipelines.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672; 49 USC 2002

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192; 49 CFR 195

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Maintenance of appropriate information about pipelines is essential for emergency response, compliance with safety standards, and other purposes. As part of a continuing policy to adopt similar requirements for gas and hazardous liquid pipelines where appropriate for safety, this action proposes to equalize as far as possible the requirements that gas and liquid operators keep maps and records to show the location and other characteristics of pipelines. In addition, operators would be required to provide this information to State agencies upon request. This is a significant action because of Congressional and State concerns about the need for appropriate public officials to have pipeline information.

A safety standard applicable to liquid pipelines requires operators to examine exposed pipe for evidence of external corrosion and, if harmful corrosion is found, to investigate further to determine the extent of the corrosion. As part of a continuing policy to adopt similar requirements for

Abstract: Certain DOT 3AL cylinders made of aluminum alloy 6351 were discovered developing cracks during service and occasionally leaks developed resulting in loss of contents. This ANPRM is to alert and inform all persons possessing these cylinders of the problems, identify those cylinders at risk, and suggest steps to minimize risks. The ANPRM requests comments concerning ways to resolve the problems.

2016. + PERFORMANCE-ORIENTED PACKAGING STANDARDS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1803; 49 USC 1804; 49 USC 1808

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 171; 49 CFR 172; 49 CFR 173; 49 CFR 176; 49 CFR 178; 49 CFR 179

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: To develop performance-oriented packaging standards and hazardous material classification based on the United Nations Committee of Experts on the Transport of Dangerous Goods. Also includes former non-significant rulemakings entitled "Consolidation of Specifications and Establishment of Performance Standards for Specification Bags" (Docket No. HM-153), "Specifications for and use of Specification 17 Steel Drums" (Docket No. HM-182), and "Organic Peroxide Requirements" (Project 186-72). The rulemaking is significant because a large number of specifications for packaging in the Hazardous Materials Regulations would be affected by this project. To a large extent the complexity and mass of the present Hazardous Materials Regulations are due to the detailed specification-type packaging standards contained in these regulations. To replace these with standards based on the U.N. system would both simplify the present regulations and facilitate international trade.

Abstract: DOT has proposed a rule that would require submission to DOT of nonstop market data from foreign carriers providing scheduled service between their home countries and the United States. This information is needed to evaluate existing bilateral agreements and reciprocity between U.S. and foreign countries. In addition, international charter data currently collected from carriers would be incorporated with this reporting. This nonstop market data should replace much of the data collected by the Immigration and Naturalization Service

Abstract: Large U.S. air carriers file detailed service segment data in ADP format for scheduled operations, while smaller carriers file a condensed version on a hardcopy form. Charter data is filed on another form. The Department has issued a rulemaking proposing to incorporate all three systems onto one automated data system by standardizing the reporting between scheduled and charter operations. Much of the data currently collected is proposed for elimination. Also, much of the data reported on the hardcopy Form 41 T-Schedules is proposed for elimination, since data for these schedules can be extracted from the automated system. Further, the foreign air carrier traffic and market reporting (2137-AA97) will be incorporated into this automated system providing a uniform traffic and market system for the Department.

2037. SHIPPERS: USE OF TANK-CAR TANKS WITH LOCALIZED THIN SPOTS

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1803; 49 USC 1804; 49 USC 1805; 49 USC 1806

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 173

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This notice proposes to allow the use of railroad tank-car tanks with shell thicknesses in localized areas of less than the minimum currently allowed. The rule would require that tank shells be measured under specific conditions to ensure that the results of repairs do not further decrease shell thickness or result in a reduction in the level of safety. Under the existing rule, owners are required to bring tanks into conformance or remove them from hazardous materials service. This proposal would allow the tank cars to conform to a less stringent standard thereby avoiding the substantial costs associated with complete restoration or purchase of a new tank car, while still ensuring an adequate level of safety.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 46 USC 1114(b); 46 USC 1156

Abstract: This regulation now establishes conditions for MARAD approval of tanker vessels over 100,000 dwt built with CDS, for participation in the carriage of Alaskan oil from Alaska to the Panama Canal. MARAD is reassessing the need for this regulation in light of the experience in administering its provisions, its policy of allowing total repayment of CDS (46 CFR Part 276) and litigation challenging these policies. Significance: Regulatory ProgramLegal Authority: 46 USC 1241(b); 46 USC 1114(b)CFR Citation: 46 CFR 382, (New)Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This regulation would require provision of rate and cost data to MARAD so it can determine fair and reasonable rates for carriage of preference cargo in bulk vessels at the request of concerned Federal agencies. MARAD would calculate guideline fair and reasonable rates using a methodology which would base those rates on a vessel's actual or constructed costs as determined from data submitted by the operator. It would establish requirements for submission of data on which the methodology would be based. This rulemaking is significant because it concerns a matter on which there is substantial public interest. It would clarify the meaning of a statutory term.

2046. ● + OPERATING-DIFFERENTIAL SUBSIDY FOR BULK CARGO VESSELS ENGAGED IN WORLDWIDE SERVICES; EXCLUSION OF COMMERCIAL CARGOES RESERVED FOR U.S.-FLAG CARRIERS

Significance: Regulatory ProgramLegal Authority: 46 USC 1114, (Appendix)CFR Citation: 46 CFR 252Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The Maritime Administration (MARAD) has entered into operating-differential subsidy contracts (ODSA) with operators of bulk cargo vessels that provide for the subsidized carriage of commercial cargo in the oceanborne foreign commerce of the United States and between foreign ports. These ODSAs specifically exclude the carriage of statutory-preference cargoes, but are silent about the cargoes that, while not preference cargoes according to a district court decision that was affirmed by the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, are reserved to U.S.-flag carriers by agreement of a foreign country that is a recipient of United States foreign assistance, in the form of cash transfers or grants. MARAD intends to propose a rulemaking that states the policy of not paying ODS on these cargoes that are reserved to U.S.-flag vessels at premium rates and are not subject to foreign competition, based on the conclusion that these are not "commercial" cargoes within the contemplation of the-ODSA provisions.

2066. REVISION OF 31 CFR PART 205 (TDC NO. 1075), PAYMENTS BETWEEN THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT AND RECIPIENT ORGANIZATIONS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 31 USC 6503

CFR Citation: 31 CFR 205

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Revision of 31 CFR 205 will implement a new funding technique for Federal programs. The regulation would require a State to pay interest on Federal funds from the time they are deposited to the State's account until the time those funds are paid out to redeem checks or warrants or make payments by other means. This new "Checks Issued-Interest Remitted" technique was developed in response to statutes in some States that require that funds reside in a bank account prior to the issuance of checks. This revision also provides for the remittance of interest by the Federal Government if a State disburses its own funds for program purposes in accordance with Federal law, regulation or Federal/State agreement.

Abstract: Revision of 31 CFR Part 210 will clarify the breadth of payments governed by the regulations. These include non-benefit payments such as vendor payments, miscellaneous payments, Internal Revenue Service (IRS) tax refunds, savings bonds, grants and loans. It will also include the payment of discretionary allotments of net pay of Federal employees' salaries by DD/EFT. Electronic funds thus transferred through the Federal Reserve System eliminate the possibility of checks being lost, stolen, or forged. The Federal Government's operating efficiency will be improved, productivity will be increased, and the costs associated with the current methods will be reduced.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 27 USC 205

CFR Citation: 27 CFR 4.24

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This proposal expands the list of names officially recognized under 27 CFR Part 4, as being non-generic for the purposes of labeling and advertising of wine. This proposal is the result of petitions from numerous foreign countries for ATF recognition of non-generic wine designations which, in their view, denote distinctive national products. This proposal is also an outgrowth of one of the commitments made by the United States, in the Exchange of Letters of July 26, 1983 with the Commission of the European Communities, to work within the regulatory framework of 27 CFR Part 4, to prevent erosion of non-generic designations of geographic significance. For practical reasons it is being proposed that only "examples" of non-generic designations be listed in Part 4 while a complete list of all non-generic designations be listed in a new Part 12.

This project will allow such whiskies to be labeled as straight as long as the whiskies are produced within the same state. Their only alternative is to leave the regulations as they are and to not allow such whiskies to be mingled and designated as straight. We do not anticipate any extra costs to result from this change in regulations. This change will result in greater flexibility for distilled spirits plant proprietors.Timetable:

Semiannual Agenda of Regulatory Actions

AGENCY: Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, Treasury.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of regulations.

SUMMARY: As required by the Regulatory Flexibility Act and Executive Order 12291, the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (Office) has prepared this semiannual agenda of its rules and regulations currently under review and scheduled for review. Regulatory actions taken since the publication of the Office's previous semiannual agenda on October 26, 1987 (52 FR 40699) are also included. It is expected that this semiannual agenda will enable the public to be more aware of, and allow it to more effectively participate in, the Office's regulatory activity.

ADDRESS: The mailing address for all contacts: Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, 490 L'Enfant Plaza East, SW., Washington, DC 20219.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: For general information about this semiannual agenda, contact Nancy Lowther, Financial Analyst, Legislative and Regulatory Analysis Division, (202) 447-1177.

For additional information about a particular item on this semiannual agenda, contact the individual identified as the contact person.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Office has determined that none of the rulemakings discussed in this semiannual agenda requires a regulatory flexibility analysis; all entries have been determined not to have a "significant impact on a substantial number of small entities," and therefore are not subject to the provisions of the Act. Additionally, none of the rules is a "major" rule as defined by Executive Order 12291. Executive Order 12291 defines a "major" rule as one likely to result in:

- (1) An annual effect on the economy of $100 million or more;
- (2) A major increase in costs or prices for consumers, individual industries, Federal, State, or local government agencies, or geographic regions; or
- (3) Significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

Dated: February 22, 1988.

Robert L. Clarke,

Comptroller of the Currency.

2099. FIDUCIARY POWERS OF NATIONAL BANKS AND COLLECTIVE INVESTMENT FUNDS

Legal Authority: Sec 1, 77 Stat 668; 12 USC 92a; 12 USC 481

CFR Citation: 12 CFR 9

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Comments in response to a prior rulemaking Final Rule Docket No. 80-16 (46 FR 71571) published October 29, 1980 included recommendations that additional amendments should be made to 12 CFR Part 9. The OCC believes that the issues raised by the commenters can best be addressed through a comprehensive review of its regulations concerning national bank fiduciary powers and collective investment funds. The OCC requested comments from the public as to the desirability and feasibility of a comprehensive review of its trust regulations pertaining to collective investment funds, including specific matters which should be addressed. In view of the favorable disposition of litigation impacting on the fiduciary powers of national banks and collective investment funds (Investment Company Institute v. Clarke, 789 F.2d 175 (2d Cir. 1986), cert. denied, 55 U.S.L.W. 3316 (U.S. Nov. 4, 1986); Investment Company Institute v. Conover, 790 F.2d 925 (D.C. ## 2102. SECURITIES EXCHANGE ACT DISCLOSURE RULES

Legal Authority: 15 USC 78

CFR Citation: 12 CFR 11, (New Subsection)

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The proposed rule would require that more detailed and meaningful information be provided to shareholders and the OCC concerning banks' loan portfolios, including loans to borrowers in foreign countries experiencing liquidity problems, other sources of income and exposure to risks. This will assist shareholders in evaluating proposals for mergers, consolidations, acquisitions and similar matters and will assist the OCC in administering and enforcing the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 as it applies to national banks. The OCC considered not proposing the additional amendments or proposing them as a general guide rather than a rule. However, the OCC determined it was appropriate to propose the additional requirements as amendments to Part 11 because the OCC believes the proposed requirements will help to clarify the types of disclosures which the OCC, shareholders and the public would consider material in analyzing various Exchange Act filings and statements. The proposed rule will also include amendments to update Part 11 to conform with recent amendments by the Securities and Exchange Commission to its Securities Exchange Act Disclosure Rules. Legal Authority: 12 USC 1 et seq; 12 USC 93a; 12 USC 161; 12 USC 1818; 12 USC 3907; 12 USC 3909

CFR Citation: 12 CFR 3

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The proposed guidelines provide for a common framework of capital adequacy measurement to remove a source of competitive inequality for banks operating internationally. However, the OCC believes the risk-based capital ratio is a useful tool for measuring capital adequacy at all national banks. The framework of measurement is mainly directed to the credit risk of balance sheet and off-balance sheet assets as they relate to bank capital. The effect on small entities will be considered in the development of this rulemaking.

Abstract: This regulation contains the OCC's disclosure requirements for securities offerings by national banks. The OCC is considering revisions which would clarify the coverage of the rule, specify the OCC's enforcement authority in connection with the rule, liberalize nonpublic offering requirements, provide for more meaningful disclosure requirements in public offerings, revise financial information requirements to be more consistent with 12 CFR Part 11, and where practicable, incorporate by reference provisions of 12 CFR Part 11. Abstract: The OCC is engaged in a continuing review of its rules, policies, and procedures governing corporate activities. The OCC proposes to make several miscellaneous technical amendments to this regulation to cause the regulation to conform to recent adjustments to OCC procedures and statutory changes for processing corporate filings; to centralize the OCC's distribution of forms and instructions for corporate activities filings; to provide clarification of the OCC's ability to impose conditions on transactions between a bank and its subsidiaries; and to outline the applicants' responsibility for accurate and complete filings. These proposals are expected to benefit national banks and the OCC by removing burdensome and costly regulatory requirements, while maintaining the OCC's ability to render an informed decision on the proposed activity; to eliminate public confusion about the availability of forms and instructions; and to enhance distribution efficiency. #### 2114. ● INVESTMENT SECURITIES REGULATION

Legal Authority: PL 97-35, Sec 1342(a); 12 USC 1; 12 USC 24(7); PL 98-473, Title I

CFR Citation: 12 CFR 1

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The OCC is amending 12 CFR Part 1 to make two nonsubstantive changes in the regulation. The first change in the regulation incorporates the existing statutory authority of national banks to underwrite and deal in obligations of the African Development Bank and the Inter-American Investment Corporation. The second change deletes from the regulation an outdated and unnecessary provision describing procedures for banks to request OCC rulings. This final rule will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 12 USC 93a; 12 USC 161; 12 USC 1818

CFR Citation: 12 CFR 18

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This final regulation revises certain disclosure requirements of the OCC. It requires all national banks to prepare an annual disclosure statement. This statement would include two consecutive years' comparative financial statements. The information to be disclosed is currently publicly available from the Call Report. The bank would have the option of including a narrative discussion of matters they deem important. The bank would notify shareholders along with the annual meeting notice and depositors and potential depositors via a lobby poster in the main office and each branch. Banks currently subject to 12 CFR 11 may use their F-2 form. This final rule will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.

Abstract: The Office proposes to amend this regulation to provide adequate safeguards for the purchase of mortgage-backed securities by national banks for their own accounts. The proposal will require that issues of such securities, in order to be eligible for purchase by national banks, must satisfy the Office's standards of investment quality and marketability. The proposal is considered a desirable alternative to leaving national banks without guidance in this area. The effect on small entities will be considered in the development of this rulemaking.

This final rule extends the period for eligible "special category charge-offs" and, also, the period of the substitute lending limit so as to make those periods consistent with the recently amended policy on capital forbearance. ## Semiannual Agenda

AGENCY: Customs Service, Treasury.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda.

SUMMARY: In response to Pub. L. 96-354, the "Regulatory Flexibility Act," and Executive Order 12291, "Federal Regulations," Customs has prepared and is publishing for public information a list of regulations either under development or under review.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: For additional information regarding the substance of any particular regulatory project described in the agenda, please communicate with the person identified as the "Agency Contact." All agency contact persons are located at U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, the address of which is noted below. Comments or inquiries of a general nature about the agenda itself should be directed to Gertrude A. Bresnahan, Regulations and Disclosure Law Branch, Office of Regulations and Rulings, Headquarters, U.S. Customs Service, Room 2324, 1301 Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, DC 20229 (202-566-8237).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background

Public Law 96-354, the "Regulatory Flexibility Act" (RFA) and Executive Order (E.O.) 12291 of February 17, 1981, "Federal Regulations," require semiannual publication, in April and October of each year, or an agenda of regulations which are "likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities" and "major" regulations, respectively. The RFA and E.O. 12291 also require agencies to include in their agendas currently effective rules which are under agency review. Customs agenda includes a brief abstract of each regulatory project ("project") being considered, an indication of whether the project will have an RFA impact, the section(s) of the Code of Federal Regulations affected, the legal authority for the action being taken, the name, title, and telephone number of an agency contact and, where applicable, an approximate timetable of completing action on any project for which Customs has published a notice of proposed rulemaking. In addition, the status of projects referred to in previously published agendas is shown. It has been determined that none of the projects listed as being under development meets the standards required of a "major" regulation provided in E.O. 12291.

General statutory authority for the development or review of regulations relating to Customs matters is found in section 301, title 5, United States Code (5 U.S.C. 301), and in sections 66 and 1624, title 19, United States Code (19 U.S.C. 66, 1624). When appropriate, additional specific statutory authority is indicated as the legal authority for the project.

Dated: February 19, 1988.

Director, Office of Regulations and Rulings.

Abstract: The Tax Reform Act of 1986 eliminates the requirement that there be a mirrored system of taxation in Guam and the CNMI, and coordinates the tax system of these possessions and of American Samoa with the U.S. tax system. Guam the CNMI and American Samoa are granted full authority over their own local income tax systems, with respect to income from sources within or effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within any of these possessions. This grant of authority is effective, however, only if and so long as an implementing agreement is in effect between the possession at issue and the United States which provides for elimination of double taxation, prevention of evasion or avoidance of U.S. tax exchange of information, and other administrative matters.

Where a corporation is subject to foreign tax on a residence basis, then for U.S. purposes, its loss will be available to offset income of that corporation in other years, but not income of another U.S. Corporation. Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 7425 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Section 301.7425-4(b)(3)(ii), which deals with excess expenses incurred by a purchaser of property after a foreclosure sale and before redemption, provides that the Service may request a written itemized statement from the purchaser regarding excess expenses with 15 days, it shall be presumed that no excess expenses are payable. However, even after the 15-day period expires, a payment for excess expenses shall be made after the redemption within a reasonable time following the verification by the district director of a written itemized statement submitted by the purchaser. There is no specific time frame set for the purchaser to submit his claim after the redemption and after the expiration of the 15-day period. We are examining the feasibility of establishing a 30-day time limit within which a final claim for excess expenses must be submitted by the purchaser after the sale of the property. This will eliminate claims for reimbursement of expenses that may be submitted after redemption and sale of the property, where the liens were fully satisfied and released, and all surplus funds returned to the taxpayer.

Legal Authority: PL 99-514, Sec 1248

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Prior to the Tax Reform Act of 1986 importers could claim a transfer price for customs purposes that was too low to be consistent with the price they claim for income tax purposes. Section 1248 of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 addressed this problem by enacting Section 1059A of the Internal Revenue Code, under which importers cannot claim a transfer price for income tax purposes that is higher than would be consistent with the value they claim for customs purposes. Regulations will be needed to provide rules for coordinating customs and tax valuation principles. It is anticipated that as a result of Section 1059A of the Internal Revenue Code, some taxpayers will claim higher transfer prices for customs purposes. No estimate has been made of the revenue.

Organization of the Agenda

The agenda is organized by statute, and in several cases it combines regulations with differing statutory authorities that have closely-related subject matter. For example, the Asbestos-in-Schools Inspection, Abatement, and Disposal regulation is written under AHERA, but appears with regulations under TSCA.

Within each statutory listing, the regulations are ordered numerically, by section number of the authorizing legislation. For example, all RCRA regulations under section 3001 appear before those under section 3006.

Within each statutory area the entries are further divided into four categories: (1) Prerule Stage; (2) Proposed Rule Stage; (3) Final Rule Stage; and (4) Completed Actions (regulations that EPA is deleting from the agenda because the Agency has completed, withdrawn, or postponed them indefinitely). Detailed information on each of these sections is presented below.

Appendix A includes a list of abbreviations of terms used in this document.

I. Prerulemakings

Prerulemaking actions include activities intended to determine whether or how to initiate rulemaking. These activities include anything that influences or leads to rulemaking, such as advance notices of proposed rulemaking, significant studies or analyses of the possible need for regulatory action, requests for public comment on the need for regulatory action, or important pre-regulatory policy proposals.

This section also includes existing EPA regulations that are now under review. The purpose of such reviews is to determine whether the Agency should revise the rule, rescind it, or leave it unchanged. When finished, the Agency will list these reviews in the completed section of the agenda. If EPA decides to revise or rescind the regulation, the action will appear in the proposed rule section of the next agenda, which will state the timetable for completing the revision or rescission.

For each regulation under review, the agenda provides the title, a short abstract, legal authority, CFR reference, any analysis EPA is preparing, contact person, and the schedule for completing the review. It also indicates the "review authority," which may be different from the regulation's statutory authority. EPA reviews regulations under various mandates, and some reviews satisfy more than one of these mandates. The principal mandates are:

Executive Order 12498 which is intended to establish annually the Administration's Regulatory Program. It defines priority activities that federal departments and agencies will work on during the upcoming year. Its purpose is to minimize duplication and conflict among regulatory activities and enhance public understanding of the Administration's regulatory objectives.

Executive Order 12291 (E.O. 12291) which establishes the general policy that federal departments and agencies should review their regulations to ensure that the costs of the regulations are justified by the benefits of the regulation.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA) which requires that federal departments and agencies review existing regulations that have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities, including small businesses, small organizations, and small governments, at least once every ten years. EPA invites public comment regarding RFA issues on the list of regulations EPA is reviewing.

Reviews EPA has targeted under the RFA are identified by a "Yes" in the "small entity" category. When the Agency completes reviews of regulations with a significant impact on small entities, the agenda entry includes an abstract that announces the Agency's decision of whether to revise, rescind, or leave the regulation unchanged. This announcement complies with the RFA and EPA's July 16, 1981 plan (46 FR 36930) for reviewing regulations under the Act.

The Paperwork Reduction Act (PRA) which requires federal departments and agencies to review its information collection activities to assure that they need and will use the information and manage it efficiently. They must also ensure that the information to be collected is of high quality, appropriate for its intended use, and does not already exist at EPA or at some other federal agency. In addition, the PRA requires agencies to review the cost of collecting the information, so that it will be held to a minimum for both the respondent and the agencies.

II. Proposed and Final Rules

EPA generally lists regulations in the agenda once they are within a year of proposal or final action. Very important regulations under development will usually appear even if the scheduled publication dates are more than a year away.

Proposed and final rules appear as: (a) Actions that will create new CFR parts, subparts, or subsections; or (b) actions that revise or amend already existing CFR parts, subparts, or subsections. The word "revision" will appear in parentheses after the title of each regulation undergoing revision. All regulations appearing in the agenda for the first time are marked with bullets (●).

This section includes all "significant" EPA regulations. Some are priority regulations under development that are subject to Executive Order 12498; or the Agency has designated for priority development or revision. These regulations are also subject to certain provisions of E.O. 12291, RFA, and PRA.

However, the listings exclude: (a) Specialized categories of actions (such as EPA approvals of State plans and other actions that do not apply nationally); and (b) routine actions (such as pesticide tolerances and minor amendments to existing rules).

For each proposed and final regulation, the agenda includes:

- Title
- Priority classification (if applicable)
- Legal authority
- CFR reference
- Legal deadline (if applicable)

- Short abstract
- Timetable of existing and scheduled actions
- Reference to small entity impacts (yes, no, or undetermined)

• Additional information (includes the FTS phone number for the Agency contact, the Start Action Request (SAR) number, which is assigned to the regulation for internal tracking purposes, and any other information that is not included in the abstract)

- Agency contact
- Analysis section (if the Agency is preparing a Regulatory Impact Analysis (RIA) and/or an RFA)

III. Completed Actions

These are actions that appeared in the last agenda, which EPA is deleting because they are completed or are no longer under consideration. Information on these regulations and reviews of regulations is less detailed than for those that are still under consideration. Generally, entries include: (1) An explanation of why the Agency is deleting the regulation from the agenda, or (2) the publication date and Federal Register citation of the final rule.

Dated: February 29, 1988.

Robert H. Wayland, III,

Deputy Assistant Administrator for Policy Planning and Evaluation.

Abstract: FIFRA requires that pesticides be classified for either general use or restricted to trained, certified pesticide applicators. This rule would classify certain active ingredients in termiticides for restricted use based on the hazards of misuse. Classification for restricted use permits the continued use of certain pesticides which, if used without restrictions, may have adverse effects on human health and the environment.

Legal Authority: 7 USC 136a /FIFRA 3; 7
USC 136w/FIFRA 25

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 158.160

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The objective in revising the regulations is to make explicit the Agency's requirement of pesticide producers to submit quantitative data on the yield/quality enhancing performance of their pesticides as compared to alternative pesticides. These data will improve the quality and timeliness of benefit analyses the Agency uses in making risk/benefit decisions to regulate pesticides under the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA). The companion revised guidelines will provide protocols and methodologies for conducting the studies necessary to produce acceptable comparative performance data. Registrants might experience very minor cost increases to register pesticide products. The benefit would be substantial in the form of better and more uniform data on pesticide product performance; for use by Agency analysts and others.

Abstract: This proposed revision will amend the existing regulations (40 CFR 172) pertaining to Experimental Use Permits (EUPs) to incorporate the policies set forth in the Office of Science and Technology Policy, which were published in the Federal Register on June 26, 1986 (51 FR 23313). The existing regulations exempt prospective registrants from the requirement of obtaining an EUP if they propose to conduct tests which will involve less than 10 acres of land and less than one surface acre of water. The proposed revision would require them to notify EPA if tests are to involve genetically altered or manipulated microorganisms or nonindigenous pathogenic microorganisms and will describe certain data required to be submitted at the time of notification so that the Agency may determine whether an EUP will be required.

2638. ● ASBESTOS-CONTAINING MATERIALS IN SCHOOLS; TRANSPORT AND DISPOSAL RULE(REVISION)

Legal Authority: 15 USC 2643 /AHERA

Abstract: When the Agency determines that in the absence of adequate safety data, the uncontrolled manufacture, import, processing, distribution, use or disposal of a PMN substance may present an unreasonable risk, it may issue a proposed order under section 5(e) to limit the aforementioned activities. However, section 5(e) orders apply only to the PMN submitter. Once the substance is placed on the TSCA chemical inventory, other persons are free to manufacture, import, or process the substance without controls. Therefore, EPA by rule, designates manufacture, import, or processing of the substances for use without the specified controls as a significant new use. These SNURs ensure that the original submitter is not at a competitive disadvantage and that no uncontrolled activities will occur without an opportunity for prior Agency review.

2645. GENERIC SIGNIFICANT NEW USE RULE FOR ACRYLATE COMPOUNDS

Legal Authority: 15 USC 2694 /TSCA

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 721

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The generic acrylate significant new use rule may require any person who proposes to manufacture, import, or process an acrylate/methacrylate subject to the category definition contained within the proposed rule to notify EPA at least 90 days in advance of the initiation of a significant new use. The significant new use rule will apply to a subset of acrylates and methacrylates added to the inventory after the effective date of the rule. It will no longer be necessary to issue routine 5(e) orders or chemical specific SNURs for those acrylates covered by the rule.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 15 USC 2604 /TSCA 5; 15 USC 2607 /TSCA 8

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 704; 40 CFR 720; 40 CFR 721

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Under the authority of the Toxic Substances Control Act, the agency is proposing two separate regulatory actions for manufacturers, importers, and processors of certain microbial products of biotechnology. Under section 5, the Agency is proposing to amend its definition of "small quantities solely for research and development" contained in the Premanufacture Notification (PMN) Rule, thereby requiring persons to submit PMNs prior to testing new microorganisms in the environment. This amendment will require reporting for new microorganisms and will establish a special notification mechanism for experimental releases of microorganisms. EPA also is proposing significant new use notification requirements under section 5(a)(2), which would ensure that EPA will receive for review notices of large scale releases of other microorganisms developed for significant new uses, and will review small-scale environmental releases, possibly with assistance from environmental biosafety committees (EBCs), peer review committees to be sponsored by researchers and accredited by EPA. In addition, the Agency may be proposing (SEE ABSTRACT CONTINUED UNDER THE ADDITIONAL INFORMATION SECTION)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 15 USC 2605 / TSCA 6

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 747

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The formulation of water-based metalworking fluids with nitrite in combination with alkanolamines may present an unreasonable risk to machinists due to the formulation of nitrosamines, particularly n-nitrosodiethanolamine (NDELA). Recent studies indicate that NDELA is a potent animal carcinogen. EPA may either propose to prohibit the intentional addition of inorganic nitrites to water-containing metalworking fluids that contain amines, refer occupational risks to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration under section 9(a) of TSCA, or initiate other actions.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 15 USC 2605 / TSCA 6; 15 USC 2608 / TSCA 9

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 754

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: EPA, in consultation with the Consumer Product Safety Commission, Occupational Safety and Health Administration and Food and Drug Administration, is developing a comprehensive and integrated strategy for a regulatory investigation of methylene chloride and five other chlorinated solvents. In some cases, these chlorinated solvents are competitive and can be easily substituted for each other in a number of uses. The integrated effort is being conducted to reach general agreement on the risks associated with the solvents and to avoid ineffective risk management actions that may occur due to solvent switching or pollutant transfer among media which could be caused by piecemeal regulation. Data are being gathered for six solvents (methylene chloride, perchloroethylene, trichloroethylene, methyl chloroform, carbon tetrachloride, and CFC-113) and their potential substitutes. This regulatory investigation is focused on four major use categories: dry cleaning, metal degreasing, paint stripping and aerosol application. The investigation will determine whether coordinated regulatory controls are needed to eliminate or reduce exposure to these solvents.

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 455

Legal Deadline: Statutory, December 31, 1986.

Abstract: On October 4, 1985 the EPA promulgated a final regulation establishing BAT, NSPS, PSES, PSNS for the pesticide industry under the Clean Water Act. On July 25, 1986 the final regulation was remanded to the EPA by the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals in response to a joint motion filed by the Agency and other parties to litigation challenging the regulation. EPA removed the BAT, NSPS, PSNS, and PSES pesticide regulation from the Code of Federal Regulations at the direction of the Court, and informed the public that the regulation is no longer effective (December 15, 1986; 51 FR 44911). The Agency intends to establish new effluent limitation guidelines and standards for the pesticide manufacturers and formulators/packagers industry in a future rulemaking. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6924 /RCRA 3004(f) & (g)

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 148

GENERAL PRETREATMENT REGULATIONS FOR EXISTING AND NEW SOURCES*Significance: Regulatory ProgramLegal Authority: 42 USC 6939 / RCRA 3018; 33 USC 1317 /CWA 307; 33 USC 1342 /CWA 402CFR Citation: 40 CFR 403Legal Deadline: Statutory, August 1987.Abstract: The Agency plans to prepare proposed changes to the General Pretreatment Regulations that address:

specific and general discharge prohibitions; controls on spills and batch dischargers and dischargers by liquid waste haulers; industrial user notification requirements; and local limits. These changes will be responsive to the recommendations of the Domestic Sewage Study submitted to Congress February 8, 1986 and are to improve the control of hazardous wastes discharged through sewers to publicly-owned treatment works.

Final Rule Stage

2689. GUIDELINES FOR CLASSIFYING GROUND WATER UNDER THE EPA GROUND WATER PROTECTION STRATEGY*Significance: Regulatory ProgramLegal Deadline: None.

Abstract: In August 1984, EPA issued a Ground water Protection Strategy to provide objectives to guide the Agency's efforts to protect ground water. One of the major goals announced in the strategy was to achieve greater consistency in decisionmaking among the many EPA programs in protecting ground water. The strategy also indicated that EPA would consider the value and vulnerability of ground water in developing protection and cleanup approaches. The classification guidelines implement these goals by providing technical information that will be useful in the evaluation of the vulnerability and value of a particular ground water unit, and by detailing a classification system that can be incorporated as a factor in program decision-making. Both should lead to greater consistency in decisions and assist in the identification of the most valuable and vulnerable ground waters, so that they receive appropriate attention. The agency will finalize the guidelines based on public comments received.

Abstract: In this amendment the Agency will propose a mechanism for permit adjustments for treatment plants served by Combined Sewer Systems similar to that which was recently promulgated (June 3, 1985) for separate sewer systems. The existing regulation requires 85% removal of BOD5 and suspended solids (65% for equivalent treatment) from treatment plants served by combined sewers during dry weather flow conditions. Problems exist in meeting these requirements when plants experience less concentrated influents.

Abstract: The agency proposed requiring States to develop and obtain approval for sludge management programs. Included in the proposal were: 1) program approval procedures; and 2) the elements of an approvable State program, including compliance monitoring and enforcement provisions. Abstract: On August 15, 1987, the Agency promulgated generally applicable environmental standards for the management and disposal of spent nuclear fuel, high-level and transuranic radioactive wastes. These Standards applied to management and disposal of such materials generated by activities under the jurisdiction of the Department of Energy or regulated by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. They established limits for the release of radioactive materials to the environment. Subsequent to promulgation of this rule, several petitions for review were filed and consolidated in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the First Circuit. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 300 / SDWA 1412

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 141

Legal Deadline: Statutory, June 19, 1988.

Abstract: EPA is reproposeing maximum contaminant level goals (MCLGs) and proposing National Primary Drinking Water Regulations (NPDWRs) for about 40 synthetic organic chemicals and inorganic chemicals. The NPDWRs consist of proposed maximum contaminants level (MCLs), as well as proposed monitoring, reporting, and public notification requirements for these contaminants. This action proposes the best available technology (BAT) upon which the MCLs are based and BAT for the purposes of issuing variances and exemptions to public water systems. In addition to the NPDWRs for the synthetic organic chemicals and inorganic chemicals, the notice proposes monitoring requirements for other synthetic organic chemicals which are not regulated by NPDWRs or proposed for regulation in this notice.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 300 /SDWA 1422

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 141; 40 CFR 142

Legal Deadline: Statutory, June 19, 1988.

Abstract: EPA has promulgated new public notification requirements regarding lead contamination of drinking water to implement section 1417(a)(2) of the Safe Drinking Water Act (SDWA). The new public notification requirements for lead require public water systems to identify and provide notice to persons who may be affected by lead contamination in their drinking water, where such contamination results from the use of lead in the construction materials of the distribution system. Section 1417(b) provides that the lead public notification requirements in section 1417(a)(2) shall be enforced in all States as of June 19, 1988. EPA is authorized to withhold up to five percent of a State's section 1443(a) public water system supervision program grant if the Agency determines that the State is not enforcing the prohibition and public notice requirements for lead. The existing grant regulations, specifically 40 CFR Part 135, do not need to be changed to accommodate this withholding. EPA will publish a guidance document that will implement this part of the SDWA as soon as it is available.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 300j-11/SDWA 1451

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 35

Legal Deadline: Statutory, December 1987.

The 11/19/86 notice states that although some controls on recycling may be promulgated in the interim, comprehensive recycling management rules including standards applicable to the combustion of used oil, will not be issued until the disposal controls are issued. The Agency does not have a more specific schedule for proposing these recycling regulations.

WASTE*Significance: Regulatory ProgramLegal Authority: 42 USC 6921 /RCRA 3001CFR Citation: 40 CFR 261Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: EPA will develop procedures to predict the release of volatile organic compounds from wastes. These procedures will be coupled with specific threshold concentrations that are derived from considerations of human health effects as well as persistence in the environment and the ability of compounds to be transported from the disposal site. The Agency will develop a self-implementing test that establishes specific standards which, if exceeded, render a waste a hazardous waste. Abstract: EPA has proposed these regulations under the authority of section 3004(a) and 3004(o)(4) of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act. The regulations will require: 1) new landfills, surface impoundments, waste piles, and land treatment units for the treatment, storage, or disposal of hazardous wastes to utilize an approved leak detection system; 2) double liners and leachate collection systems for waste piles, and certain landfills and surface impoundments; and 3) development of a construction quality assurance program for certain landfills and surface impoundments, as well as final covers at land treatment units. Abstract: The current regulations require that closure of a hazardous waste unit begin after the final receipt of hazardous wastes. The proposed rule will identify the circumstances under which a unit that ceases to receive hazardous wastes may continue to accept non-hazardous wastes. Amendments will identify conditions for the subsequent use of a unit for non-hazardous waste management and coordination with other closure activities of a hazardous waste management facility. Instead, EPA plans to develop a program for mining waste under Subtitle D of RCRA, working with the States to determine the specific nature of their current mining waste activities and their future plans to administer such programs. EPA will propose a set of criteria for the proper disposal of mining wastes under RCRA Subtitle D authority. EPA will also work with other Federal agencies (e.g., DOI, USGS) to avoid duplication in regulatory efforts.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6901 /RCRA

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 264; 40 CFR 265

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The Agency is considering further revisions to the financial responsibility requirements for liability coverage for third-party bodily injury and property damage resulting from accidental occurrences at hazardous waste treatment, storage, and disposal facilities. The revisions under development are intended to allow greater flexibility in the types of financial instruments that can be used by hazardous waste facility owners and operators who may have encountered difficulties in obtaining insurance or the limited number of other possible instruments to meet liability coverage requirements. Other instruments, such as a non-parent corporate guarantees and letters of credit, are being analyzed for inclusion of this rulemaking.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6925 /RCRA

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 270

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This regulation will amend RCRA procedures (codified at 40 CFR 270.41 and 270.42) for modifying hazardous waste management permits. The rulemaking provides EPA, authorized states, and permittees more flexibility in modifying permits, particularly where modifications will increase public and environmental protection or facilitate compliance with new regulations. At the same time, the regulation will provide for improved public participation in the permit modifications. The proposed rule was developed through regulatory negotiation with representatives of EPA, the states, industry, and public interest groups. RIN 2050-AA37 has been combined with this action.

It will establish state-wide permitting procedures for mobile hazardous waste treatment units and will modify hazardous waste delisting procedures, so that hazardous waste treatment residues could be delisted as part of the permitting process. In addition, the petition response solicited comment on HWTC's request that EPA exempt certain treatment technologies

Legal Deadline: Statutory. New and Existing Petroleum Tanks (02/08/87), New Chemical Tanks (08/08/87), Existing Chemical Tanks (08/08/88)

Abstract: This regulation will establish, under Subtitle I of RCRA, requirements for release detection, prevention, and corrective action for all underground storage tanks holding petroleum and other regulated substances. Because of the large size of the regulated community, this rule could impact a significant number of small business entities and a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis will be conducted by EPA. Promulgation of this rule, will, for the first time, establish national requirements for storing regulated substances, including petroleum products in underground tanks. It will not apply to underground tanks storing hazardous wastes, which are currently regulated under Subtitle C of RCRA.

These regulations will include: performance standards for new tanks; address leak detection and upgrading of existing tanks; and specify response actions to releases.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7545(e) / CAA 211(e)

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 79; 40 CFR 80

Legal Deadline: Statutory, August 7, 1978.

Abstract: The CAA requires that testing protocols be developed to address at a minimum, the possible carcinogenic, mutagenic, and teratogenic effects of fuels and fuel additives as well as their effect on emissions and emission control devices. This action would implement protocols for such testing, which would have to be performed prior to: 1) fuel or additive registration, and 2) introduction of the fuel or additive into the marketplace. Fuels and additives already registered or on sale would also have to undergo testing, as provided for by the CAA.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7545 / CAA 211

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 79; 40 CFR 80

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Trap oxidizers, the use of which may be required to meet 1991 and later model-year heavy duty diesel particulate standards, may require the use of low sulfur diesel fuels. In promulgating the particulate standard, EPA promised to examine the need for low-sulfur fuel. In addition, fuel sulfur and aromatics content have been shown to have a direct effect on particulate emissions. This action will determine the costs and benefits of improving diesel fuel quality.

This action represents a continuation of the review process for the secondary standards for particulate matter discussed by the Agency on March 20, 1984 (49 FR 10408). Many States failed to submit adequate visibility SIPs and EPA was sued to force the Agency to promulgate SIPs for such States. Pollutants to be regulated will include one or more designated pollutants (pollutants not regulated under Sections 108-110 or 112) thus invoking Section 111(d) which will require States to develop additional emissions standards for existing MWC based on EPA guidelines.

Pollutants to be regulated will include one or more designated pollutants (pollutants not regulated under Section 108 - 110 or 112 of the Act) thus invoking Section 111(d). Section 111(d) will require States to develop emission standards for existing landfills based on EPA guidelines.

2811. NESHAPS: BENZENE IN COKE OVEN BY-PRODUCT PLANTS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7412 / CAA 112

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 61

Legal Deadline: Statutory, December 1984. Statutory - Promulgation due 12/00/84

Abstract: This regulation will control benzene emissions generated by the processing of gaseous and liquid streams at coke by-product plants. The emission sources to be controlled include process equipment, storage vessels, and fugitive emissions. The standards may consist of equipment specifications, work practices, design specifications, and emission limits. A supplemental proposal will be published to reevaluate the standard consistent with the court decision in vinyl chloride.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7412 / CAA 112

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 61 G

Legal Deadline: Statutory, March 1985. Statutory - Proposal due 3/00/85

Abstract: This regulation will control emissions of coke oven emissions, which have been designated as hazardous under section 112. It will require improved maintenance and operation to limit visible emissions from wet-coal-charged coke oven batteries. The standards may apply to charging and leaks from doors, lids, or offtakes for all existing or new sources. Abstract: EPA issued a notice of intent to list total chromium or hexavalent chromium under Section 112 (50 FR 24317). We are further assessing the public health risks of chromium compounds. Also, we are investigating emissions of chromium and techniques that are available to control the emissions from 11 identified source categories. If EPA decides that emission standards are warranted, chromium or hexavalent chromium will be listed under Section 112, and EPA will develop proposed standards. Abstract: EPA issued a notice of intent to list total chromium or hexavalent chromium under Section 112 (50 FR 24137). We are further assessing the public health risks of chromium compounds. Preliminary assessment performed by EPA has identified industrial process cooling towers as a source category which the proposal of national emission standards may be warranted. We are presently investigating in detail alternative feasible control options, and the economic, energy, and environmental impacts, and the effect on public health risks that would result from their application. If EPA decides, based on these investigations, that emissions standards are warranted, chromium or hexavalent chromium will be listed under Section 112 and EPA will develop standards.

Abstract: EPA issued a notice of intent to list chromium or hexavalent chromium under Section 112 (50 FR 24317). We are further assessing the public health risks of chromium compounds. A preliminary assessment performed by EPA has identified chromium electroplating as a source category which emits significant quantities of chromium to the atmosphere and for which the proposal of national emission standards may be warranted. We are presently investigating in detail alternative feasible control options, and the economic, energy, and environmental impacts, and the effect on public health risks that would result from their application. If EPA decides, based on these investigations, that emission standards are warranted, chromium or hexavalent chromium will be listed under Section 112, and standards will be proposed.

Legal Deadline: Judicial, December 2, 1988. U.S. Court of Appeals has granted EPA's motion to remand radionuclide NESHAPS and decisions not to regulate. EPA is ordered to propose action within 180 days (June 7, 1988), and promulgate final rules within 360 days (December 2, 1988).

Abstract: EPA is addressing the risks to individuals and to populations due to radionuclide emissions to air. This action is taken under the authority of Section 112 of the Clean Air Act. Rulemakings will be performed for the following source categories: Department of Energy facilities, Facilities licensed by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Elemental Phosphorous plants, Radon-222 emissions from licensed uranium mill tailings, Coal-fired boilers, uranium fuel cycle facilities, inactive uranium mill tailings, high level radioactive waste, and phosphogypsum piles. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7521 / CAA 202

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 86

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: In March 1985 the EPA promulgated NOx and PM emission standards for heavy-duty vehicles and engines. The rulemaking included a provision for emissions averaging for the final stages of standard implementation in order to mitigate the economic impact of the stringent standards. EPA realized that the averaging mechanism could provide more benefits to manufacturers with a broader product line. In order to address this issue, EPA included in the final package a provision to study the potential for mitigating this uneven distribution of benefits through an emissions credit trading program. The study was expanded to include the concept of 'banking' emissions credit. The study has been completed and made available to the public and a technical workshop was held in January 1987. EPA is analyzing the comments received from the public and from the workshop.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7524 / CAA 206

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 86

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This action will address the availability of nonconformance penalties (NCPs) and specific upper limits and penalty rates for 1991 through 1994 model year emission standards for heavy-duty vehicles and engines. The availability of NCPs will allow a manufacturer, whose vehicles or engines fail to conform with certain applicable emission standards, but which do not exceed a designated upper limit, to be issued a certificate of conformity upon payment of a monetary penalty. This rule is the third phase of NCP rulemaking. The first, published August 30, 1985 established generic aspects of NCPs. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7401 et seq/CAA

CFR Citation: 40 CFR Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The EPA is developing a program to address the likelihood that many areas in the country will not attain the national ambient air quality standards (NAAQS) for ozone and carbon monoxide (CO) by December 31, 1987, the latest date for attainment expressly identified in the Clean Air Act. This notice describes EPA's views about how EPA should interpret the Act so as to bring those areas into attainment, the reasons for that interpretation, and the concrete steps EPA intends to take to implement that interpretation soon and in the long term. The final policy will be an advance notice of how EPA intends, in subsequent rulemakings, to judge the adequacy of State efforts to plan for attainment of the ozone and CO standards.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Abstract: EPA issued a notice of intent to list total chromium or hexavalent chromium under Section 112 (50 FR 24317). We are further assessing the public health risks of chromium compounds and investigating emissions of chromium and techniques that are available to control the emissions from identified source categories. Because emissions from cooling towers using chromium chemicals in the recirculating water are predominantly hexavalent, a detailed investigation of the technical feasibility of using chromium substitutes or high efficiency drift eliminators is being conducted. EPA has decided that emissions standards are warranted, and standards will be proposed under Section 6 of TSCA.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7401/CAA

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 50; 40 CFR 52

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: Since 1977, EPA has allowed States with rural fugitive dust areas (RFDAs) to discount fugitive dust in developing and enforcing a State Implementation Plan(SIP) for attainment and maintenance of the NAAQS for particulate matter (PM). On July 1, 1987, EPA promulgated revisions to its particulate matter National Ambient Air Quality Standards (NAAQS), 52 FR 24634. In this notice, EPA also solicited comments on alternatives for SIP requirements for RFDAs and on the adequacy of the definitions which are used in identifying RFDAs, and the importance of protecting annual versus 24-hour NAAQS (52 FR 24716). The EPA will issue its decision after considering public comments on the alternatives. The EPA will continue its existing fugitive policy and apply it to implementation of the revised particulate standard until a decision is made.

EPA—CAA

Final Rule Stage

Legal Deadline: Judicial, November 1987. Revised proposal by December 1987 and Final action by August 1988.

Abstract: This action initiates a comprehensive research effort by EPA to assess issues related protection of the stratosphere, as directed by Part B, Section 157 of the CAA. The plan proposed that EPA enhance its research and analysis, participate in a series of domestic and international workshops related to stratospheric ozone, and arrive at a decision by November, 1987 whether additional regulation, either domestic or international, of stratospheric perturbants, is necessary. The plan also served as a basis for a settlement agreement between EPA and NRDC in a suit brought before the DC Circuit Court.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7521 / CAA 202

Abstract: This rule will develop emission standards and test procedures applicable to methanol-fueled light-duty vehicles, light-duty trucks, heavy-duty engines, and motorcycles. ## 2851. CONTROL OF EXCESS EVAPORATIVE EMISSIONS/FUEL VOLATILITY

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7521 /CAA 202; 42 USC 7525 /CAA 206; 42 USC 7545 /CAA 211; 42 USC 7601 /CAA 301(a)

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 86

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: In-use motor vehicle evaporative hydrocarbon emissions greatly exceed their applicable EPA emissions standards. A major reason is that the volatility of commercial gasoline is substantially greater than that of the certification test fuel specified by EPA. This rule will consider options to deal with this problem including control of commercial fuel volatility and a change to certification test fuel volatility.

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 86

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: EPA is considering revising the particulate emission standards for light-duty diesel trucks with a loaded vehicle weight equal to or greater than 3751 pounds. The standard would be relaxed for the 1987-1990 model years, allowing manufacturers to devote their resources to developing particulate trap oxidizer technology. Then in 1991, the standard would be tightened to 0.13 grams per mile which is twice as stringent as the current applicable standard.

2853. SMALL-VOLUME MANUFACTURERS CERTIFICATION PROCEDURE (REVISION)

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7525 / CAA 206

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 86

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This action will result in amended rules to provide for certification of emissions compliance by small-volume manufacturers, including commercial importers importing vehicles into the United States. By a separate action, EPA has revised its rules for nonconforming vehicle importation. This action is appropriate to improve the certification regulations and assure compliance with the exhaust emission standards. Current rules for small-volume manufacturers were not specifically intended to apply to conversion of previously manufactured but uncertified configurations. However, increasingly large numbers of manufacturers who import vehicles for resale have applied for EPA certification as an alternative to individual vehicle importation. This will primarily impact businesses involved in importing motor vehicles. The likely impact of these changes will be increased costs to these businesses.

Abstract: These amendments would delete the mandatory reporting of manufacturers' internal quality assurance emission test data. Prior to promulgation of this requirement in 1980, many manufacturers voluntarily submitted their internal quality assurance data. The deletion of this requirement is not expected to affect the SEA program, especially since many manufacturers will continue to provide the data voluntarily.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7541(b) /CAA 207(b)

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 85

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: The U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit has directed EPA to amend the aftermarket parts certification regulations. There were four specific areas which the Court directed EPA to revisit. EPA was directed to develop better procedures for determining adequate grounds for manufacturer denial of a warranty claim; reconsider inclusion of specialty parts into the certification system; improve the procedure for resolution of warranty cost claims by vehicle manufacturers' against certified parts manufacturers; and labeling for certified parts. Under the proposed regulation, effective with the 1990 model year, emissions testing for EPA's programs involving Certification, Selective Enforcement Audits, and Recalls and for service accumulation for the Certification program for all gasoline-fueled motor vehicles will be performed only with unleaded gasoline test fuel.

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 117; 40 CFR 302; 40 CFR 355

Abstract: In the May 25, 1983 NPRM (48 FR 23552) that proposed to adjust certain reportable quantities (RQs) for releases of hazardous substances, EPA explained the Agency's interpretation of each of the types of releases exempted by the definition of "federally permitted release" in Section 101(10) of CERCLA. Because of the amount of time that has passed and additional analysis undertaken since that NPRM, this action repropose regulations to clarify the statutory language in Section 101(10) of CERCLA.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9604(c)/CERCLA 104(c); 42 USC 9621(d)(3)/CERCLA 121(d)(3); 33 USC 1321(c)(2)/CWA 311(c)(2)

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 300

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This rule interprets and codifies (1) the requirements of Section 121(d)(3) of the Comprehensive Emergency Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (CERCLA) as amended by the Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act of 1986 (SARA) and (2) the revised off-site policy directive (November 13, 1987). Section 121(d)(3) and the directive describe procedures that must be observed when a response action under CERCLA involves off-site transfer of CERCLA wastes resulting from CERCLA decision documents signed after the enactment of SARA. Section 121(d)(3) of SARA specifies that wastes from removal or remedial actions under CERCLA: 1) only be transferred to facilities that are in compliance with Sections 3004 and 3005 of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA), other applicable Federal laws and State laws, and 2) only be transferred to units at hazardous waste land disposal facilities that are not leaking and where releases from other (non-receiving) units at the facility are under a corrective action program.

2873. HAZARD RANKING SYSTEM FOR UNCONTROLLED HAZARDOUS SUBSTANCE RELEASES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9605(a)(8)(A) / CERCLA 105(a)(8)(A); 42 USC 9605(c) / CERCLA 105(C); 42 USC 9618/CERCLA 118; 42 USC 9625/CERCLA 125

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 300, Appendix A

Legal Deadline: Statutory, April 17, 1988.

Abstract: This action revises the Hazard Ranking System (HRS) which is Appendix A of the National Contingency Plan. The HRS is a system for determining the relative severity of risks among releases of hazardous substances. The HRS is the primary mechanism for establishing the National Priorities List under CERCLA. SARA requires that the HRS be amended to assure, to the extent feasible, that it accurately assesses relative risk to public health and the environment. SARA specifically requires that the HRS take into consideration natural resource damages that may affect the human food chain as well as potential air contamination. The HRS must also appropriately assess human health risks associated with contamination of surface waters for drinking or recreation.

2874. NATIONAL PRIORITIES LIST FOR UNCONTROLLED HAZARDOUS WASTE SITES - UPDATE 7

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9605 /CERCLA 105; 42 USC 9620 /CERCLA 120

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 300.66

Legal Deadline: Statutory. Annual Update.

Abstract: This action revises the National Priorities List (NPL) for uncontrolled hazardous waste sites in the National Contingency Plan (NCP). CERCLA requires that the NPL be revised at least annually. Periodic revisions will allow EPA to include sites on the NPL with known or threatened hazardous substances releases and to delete sites that have been cleaned up. EPA uses the Hazard Ranking System (HRS) to evaluate the sites. The Agency will propose Update 7. See the related actions in the proposed and final rule sections of this Agenda.

2877. ● ARBITRATION PROCEDURES FOR SMALL SUPERFUND COST RECOVERY CLAIMS

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9607(a)/CERCLA 107(a); 42 USC 9622(h)/SARA 122(h)

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 304

Legal Deadline: None.

Abstract: This regulation will establish and govern the procedures for arbitration of small CERCLA 107(a) cost recovery claims pursuant to the authority granted EPA by SARA 122(h)(2). The regulation will provide a voluntary procedure by which EPA and PRPs at a site may agree to submit a cost recovery claim for resolution by arbitration. Arbitration may be used only when the total response costs for the facility concerned do not exceed $500,000, excluding interest. Arbitration is an alternative dispute resolution technique that should provide a quicker and less costly method of case resolution than traditional litigation and negotiations.
